Farmers to Get Easy Credit, More Machinery

LOANS LIMITED ONLY BY NEEDS OF PRODUCTION

Additional 50,000 Tons Of Steel Allotted To Makers Of Ag Equipment

NELSON DEFENDS OCS

Manufacturing Quota Still Below Demands Made By Growers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The federal government today lent a hand to farmers in meeting the expanded 1943 food goals, opening up between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 in easy credit and authorizing an increase in the output of new agricultural machinery.

Food Administrator Wickard announced that individual loans, "to be limited only by the amount needed to do the production job," will be granted on easy terms to farmers with first liens on the commodities, livestock or other items being financed acceptable as collateral.

Steel Allotted

At the same time, the WPB Requirements Committee allotted an additional 50,000 tons of steel for the manufacture of farm equipment after the Truman Committee of the senate had warned that there was danger this year's food goals could not be attained without more machines.

The increase, applicable for the first quarter of 1943, brought the production quota for new equipment up from 23 percent of 1940's output to about 30 percent. Agricultural officials, however, had demanded a minimum of 33 percent.

The higher steel allotment was accompanied by a statement from WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson staunchly defending the Office of Civilian Supply which the Truman Committee accused of "gambling dangerously and unwisely with our nation's food supply" in setting the original quota.

Favors Increase

"With the conclusion that there should be such an increase I thoroughly agree, but I should like to stress a few points," he said.

"The OCS in June drafted for the farm equipment industry a program which was sound in the light of the need for offensive weapons then prevailing. I do not think it is fair to criticize OCS for not having acted in June in the light of a situation which did not develop until long after the 1943 farm equipment program was formulated. Conditions since have changed, as they so frequently do in wartime, and the program should be and is being enlarged."

Nelson pointed out that WPB previously boosted the steel allotment for farm equipment by 55,000 tons in the final quarter of 1942; gave the industry preference equal to the highest military priority; and jumped the quota of repair parts to 167 percent of the 1940 production rate.

He said farm machinery needs for the second quarter of this year

"A" CARDS NOT SO BAD, AUTO OWNERS LEARN

Most Circleville and Pickaway county motorists who are operating their cars with a basic A ration permit got along very well during the first period of operation.

A survey conducted in the city Friday disclosed that many motorists had "A" stamps which they were unable to cash because the gasoline tanks in their cars were too full to use the amounts permitted. Some others finished using their No. 3 stamps the final day in which the stamps were valid.

There were others, however, who said they could not do all the driving necessary with a basic A permit. They ran short of coupons and were forced to leave their cars at home.

A week ago, J. O. Eagleson, rationing board clerk, said that he had received reports that some service stations were accepting No. 4 and No. 5 gasoline tickets. Eagleson warned that motorists must make their basic A books last them until July when new books will be issued. No assistance is being provided by the office for motorists who exceed the number of miles they are expected to drive.

The board clerk also called attention of tire inspectors to the provision which insists that all the inspection forms be filled out in making a report. Eagleson noted particularly the blank which asks that the purpose for which the vehicle is used be reported.

Stamp No. 4 must last motorists from January 22 through March 21.

SUPPORTED SONS FINALLY RELENT AFTER 32 YEARS

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 22—Victor Vance of Pueblo was relieved today of the necessity of paying $25 a month to his two sons, and it was about time, for he had been paying it for the last 32 years.

The sons, one now 37 and the other 41, asked Judge Hubert Glover to rescind the order which was issued by the county court December 8, 1910 inasmuch as their father, now 70, is in failing health.

The surprised judge promptly complied, pointing out Vance was bound by the ruling only until the boys were 21 and that, anyway, the court had jurisdiction in cases only where the amount totaled less than $2,000.

Vance's payments, always made on time, aggregated nearly $10,000.

Witnesses Tell How Craft Made Fatal Plunge Into Woods

BULLETIN

Public relations office at Lockbourne air base announced Friday afternoon that the pilot killed east of Circleville Thursday afternoon was Lieutenant Joseph L. Harrington, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Harrington of Meridian, Miss. His parents have been notified of his death.

Harrington was commissioned November 10 after being trained as an aviation cadet. He had been at Lockbourne since January 5.

A board of officers has been appointed to investigate the tragedy.

Lockbourne air base salvage crews worked far into the night Thursday and intended to complete their task Friday of removing wreckage of a speedy P-39 single-motored fighter plane which crashed into a woods behind the farm home of John Heffner, three miles east of Circleville, Thursday at approximately 2:20 p. m.

A Lockbourne-based lieutenant, his name and address not being revealed until next of kin has been notified, by the War Department, was killed instantly. His body, mangled beyond recognition, was removed from the cockpit of the plane and taken to Lockbourne army base at about 4 p. m. Thursday after army authorities had taken charge at the scene.

First Local Crash

The crash, first to happen in Pickaway county since the Lockbourne base was opened for operation last July, attracted persons from Circleville and surrounding areas, and scores ventured close enough to the wreckage to observe that hardly a single part of the plane, reported capable of traveling faster than 300 miles an hour, remained unbroken. Later in the evening after Lockbourne military police had posted guards no automobiles were permitted off the main highways in the vicinity of the Heffner home.

Lockbourne base public relations authorities, represented by Lieutenant Joe Schroeder, said that the victim of the crash was on a routine training flight. Other army men who were at the scene of the tragedy said the lieutenant was on his last training flight before being assigned to a field in the South for advanced technical training. He hoped soon to be in action, men sent to the scene told bystanders.

Falls Into Woods

That the plane dived headlong into the woods is indicated by the fact that no path was broken through trees of the wooded area by the plane. Only trees broken were those on which the plane fell.

Likely, Lockbourne men pointed out, the pilot's last act was to turn off the ignition switch as the plane fell. This action prevented a fire which would have enveloped the remains of the plane and its pilot. Gasoline was scattered over an area about 30 yards square.

Parts of the plane were found over a similar area. Lockbourne air base was notified of the crash by a telephone call from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Clendennen, whose farm home is only a few hundred yards from the crash scene.

American Forces On Move In Second Phase Of Island Battle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—American army troops specially equipped and trained in jungle fighting today are stalking Japs in the wilds of Guadalcanal in what appears to be the second offensive phase of the Solomons campaign.

Disclosure that Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch has been placed in command on Guadalcanal and that most of the original Marine force has been replaced by army troops left no doubt that the preliminary phase of the campaign is over and that American forces are on the move once more.

Recent U. S. successes in offensive ground actions against the Japs provided the first hint that fresh, well-equipped and well-trained army troops are pushing the enemy forces back through the jungle-clad mountains of Guadalcanal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—"Zorita," who with other members of the "nudist colony," drew huge crowds at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair, today was in federal jail charged with conspiring to violate the White Slave Traffic Act.

More recently famous for her exotic "snake dance" performed in New York night clubs, "Zorita" when arrested, gave her name as Ada Brockett, her home town as Youngstown, O., and her age as 24.

Arrested with her were Gwen Gibson, 21, formerly of Thomasville, Ga.; Irving Alexander, 34, night-club manager, and Maurice Chernov, 43, headwaiter, who hails from Philadelphia.

All were accused of having induced young girls to come to New York for immoral purposes with "dates" arranged for them by Alexander or Chernov. All were held in jail awaiting grand jury action.

JOINT BURIAL ARRANGED FOR 57 HUN VICTIMS

LONDON, Jan. 22—Joint burial services, under civic auspices, will be held next Wednesday for the little victims of the brutal German air raid on a suburban London school, it was announced today. The toll of the German attack took stood at 57 dead, four missing and 59 injured. Several of the injured were not expected to live.

Workers and volunteers continued digging today in the ruins of the wrecked school building on the bare chance that some of the missing children might still be found alive. One ten-year-old girl was dug alive from the debris more than ten hours after the bombings.

Item: Nazi fliers buried with full military honors in England.

We are being told to hate, and the killing of little children is a guaranteed recipe for whipping us into a cold, bitter, hard hate.

But when Nazi killers are buried tenderly with the swastika on their coffins, planes circling overhead in salute, villagers standing by soberly, we are confused.

BUS FALTERS, SO SCHOOL KIDS GET VACATION

WALSENBURG, Colo., Jan. 22—Classes were called off today at the Pictou T61tec rural school near Walsenburg and there was no telling when they would be resumed.

It all was on account of a universal joint on the school bus which wore out. Without the universal joint the bus wouldn't run. And without the bus the kids couldn't get to school.

Guy M. Springer, manager of the Southern Colorado Office of Defense Transportation, took up the matter with the ODT in Washington and hopes for a replacement soon.

NORTHERN DRIVE TALK REVIVED

Scandinavia Regarded As Likely Spot For Blow At Germans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Lifting of the German siege of Leningrad and Sweden's renewed fears of invasion today revived speculation in diplomatic circles in Washington concerning the possibility of an eventual allied move to open a new front in Norway.

If the Russian offensive around Leningrad can develop sufficient strength, the possibility is seen that the Soviet armies might be able to move up through Finland and effect a juncture with an allied invasion force coming into Northern Norway.

The view has long prevailed in diplomatic circles in Washington that Norway eventually would be a logical place in which to open a new front against Germany.

It is from airfields based in Northern Norway that the German air force has been playing such havoc with the allied convoys to Russia via the northern route. The few warships of the German navy that have ventured out to sea have been based in Norwegian fjords. If the Germans could be driven out of Norway, it is believed the supply route to Russia

JITTERY JAPS PREPARING FOR YANK BOMBINGS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—The Japanese are expecting heavier Allied bombing raids in China, the Chungking radio declared today in a broadcast heard by the Office of War Information. Since the damaging raids on the Lansi mines in Hopeh province last October, the Japanese have strengthened anti-aircraft defenses along the Kiaotsai railroad which runs through the North China mining district.

Air raid precaution drills are held regularly by the Japanese garrisons in the Hopeh area, and rigid blackout regulations are strictly enforced, Chungking said.

This evidence of Japanese jitters under the pounding of American bombers followed a prediction by Australian Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford that before the end of the year Australian bombers will "surely be dropping bombs on Tokyo."

He disclosed that the RAAF is growing rapidly although the American and Australian air forces already have undisputed superiority in the southwest Pacific. While he warned that the war will be long and bitter, there are already signs that "the enemy has begun to soften and wilt."

Zero Pilots Learn About Liberators

Four Bombers Destroy 12 Japs Out Of 25 In Attack Group

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 21 — (Via Courier) —Four victorious American B-24 Liberator bombers limped home to their base here tonight after scoring one of the greatest aerial triumphs in the southwest Pacific.

The United States airmen destroyed 12 of an attacking force of 25 Japanese Zero fighters and damaged at least six others in the skies over Wewak, New Guinea.

None of the crew members in the four Liberators was wounded in the hour-long engagement against terrific odds. But one plane returned looking like a sieve with 256 machine-gun and cannon holes peppered into its wings and fuselage. Another weaved in with one of its engines gone. A third had one rudder almost entirely shot away, no brakes and its flaps nearly cut in half by enemy fire.

Fighters Exhausted

The men were exhausted when they returned to their base. Their eyes were bloodshot and their faces stained with grease.

The Jap Zeros had attacked them while they were on a mission to deliver a blow against the Jap base of Wewak on the north coast. In the hottest dogfight ever to take place over this area the allied bomber crews fired many thousands of rounds of machine-gun bullets. Each bomber crew had its own proud record.

Lieut. Roy Olsen, of Central Falls, Ia., shot down three of the Japs and damaged one. His was the plane that landed with one rudder practically shot away.

Lieut. George Shaffer, of Tulsa, Okla., accounted for two, as did Major Cecil Faulkner of Bellevue, Tex.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—OPA officials who neglected to state "answer in English," today were biting their nails in the awful anticipation that they will receive 5,000 questionnaires—filled out in Chinese.

The questionnaires, part of a mailing to all laundries dispatched with a view to establishing price ceilings, were sent to the 5,000 Chinese laundries together with a set of instructions translated into Chinese by the Chinese Benevolent Association.

Lacking interpreters of its own, the OPA fears that it will have to call on the Benevolent Association once more if the forms are returned with Chinese characters. To add to the price czars' woes, the information must be supplied every two months.

MOOSE BLOCKADE MONTANA ROAD; REFUSE TO MOVE

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 22—Residents of Wiserver, a small community 80 miles southwest of Butte, reported today a highway blockade that did not come under the purview of the censorship.

It was not huge snow drifts, nor floods, nor debris left by tornadoes that caused the blockade—just a herd of amiable moose that parked themselves on the highway and refused to budge.

Deputy Game Warden Lester Barton of Butte said he was "trying, although not very successfully, to chase the moose back into the high country" but that he was handicapped because "people persist in feeding them and giving them salt—there's no telling when I'll get rid of them now."

The British Eighth Army has crashed into the suburbs of Tripoli, ending a 1,200-mile advance across the Egyptian and Libyan deserts, the Morocco radio reported today, as the bulk of the defeated Afrika Korps fled toward Tunisia.

The Morocco report said that parts of Tripoli are in flames, with fires also burning in Homs, while other dispatches reported continued attempts by remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's troops to stage a minor "Dunkirk" and embark across the Mediterranean to Sicily in small boats.

(Editor's note: A BBC Dutch-language broadcast recorded by the FCC in New York said that the Tripoli suburbs are in "allied hands." An artillery barrage is being laid down into the capital from a hill position, it was said, while American and British planes pounded the city relentlessly, spreading fire and destruction.)

The Swiss radio broadcast the same report that British troops have entered the city area.

Homs Passed

The official Middle East Command communique, reporting on positions of Thursday, said merely that British vanguards had passed Homs, 65 miles east of Tripoli on the coastal road, and driven beyond Tarhuna, 45 miles distant on the interior desert highway.

But military observers expected news momentarily of the fall of the battered port.

Aircraft of the Middle East Command ranged over the battle field and pounded retreating axis columns as far west as Ben Gardane in Tunisia, 120 miles beyond Tripoli.

The stretch of road was littered with the debris of wrecked enemy vehicles, smashed tanks and wrecked field guns.

Axis airfields on Sicily and in Libya were heavily bombed, and shipping in the Mediterranean was flailed by allied torpedo bombers off the Tunisian coast.

It was a field day for allied airpower from Europe to the far east.

Yanks Drop Japs

In the Southwest Pacific four big American Liberator bombers, attacked by a flight of 25 Japanese Zeros off Northern New Guinea, shot down 12 and damaged six, and another allied bomber squadron attacking the Jap-held naval base at Ambona, destroyed two and damaged several of an attacking force of 20 Zeros. All American planes returned safely, although some were pretty badly crippled.

Three formations of British Blenheims blasted Japanese positions in West Burma on the stretch between Rathedaung and Ayak, the Bay of Bengal port which is the objective of a British land drive.

In Europe the RAF followed a series of daylight raids on the French and Dutch coasts with another night attack on Germany—the first since Sunday's devastating assault on Berlin.

The air ministry announcement said targets in the Ruhr were left in flames but that heavy cloud formations prevented accurate observation of results. Four bombers failed to return. Berlin said six raiders were shot down.

French In Battle

French forces in Central Tunisia were locked in battle with axis tank and infantry forces, and British units were reported rushing to the aid of their allies who have been pushed back in the area of Pont Du Fahs, 65 miles southwest of Tunis.

Farmers to Get Easy Credit, More Machinery

LOANS LIMITED ONLY BY NEEDS OF PRODUCTION

Additional 50,000 Tons Of Steel Allotted To Makers Of Ag Equipment

NELSON DEFENDS OCS

Manufacturing Quota Still Below Demands Made By Growers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—The federal government today lent a hand to farmers in meeting the expanded 1943 food goals, opening up between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 in easy credit and authorizing an increase in the output of new agricultural machinery.

Food Administrator Wickard announced that individual loans, "to be limited only by the amount needed to do the production job," will be granted on easy terms to farmers with first liens on the commodities, livestock or other items being financed acceptable as collateral.

Steel Allotted

At the same time, the WPB Requirements Committee allotted an additional 50,000 tons of steel for the manufacture of farm equipment after the Truman Committee of the senate had warned that there was danger this year's food goals could not be attained without more machines.

The increase, applicable for the first quarter of 1943, brought the production quota for new equipment up from 23 percent of 1940's output to about 30 percent. Agricultural officials, however, had demanded a minimum of 35 percent.

The higher steel allotment was accompanied by a statement from WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson staunchly defending the Office of Civilian Supply which the Truman Committee accused of "gambling dangerously and unwisely with our nation's food supply" in setting the original quota.

Favors Increase

"With the conclusion that there should be such an increase I thoroughly agree, but I should like to stress a few points," he said.

"The OCS in June drafted for the farm equipment industry a program which was sound in the light of the need for offensive weapons then prevailing. I do not think it is fair to criticize OCS for not having acted in June in the light of a situation which did not develop until long after the 1943 farm equipment program was formulated. Conditions since have changed, as they so frequently do in wartime, and the program should be and is being enlarged."

Nelson pointed out that WPB previously boosted the steel allotment for farm equipment by 55,000 tons in the final quarter of 1942; gave the industry preference equal to the highest military priority, and jumped the quota of repair parts to 167 percent of the 1940 production rate.

He said farm machinery needs for the second quarter of this year

Public relations office at Lockbourne air base announced Friday afternoon that the pilot killed east of Circleville Thursday afternoon was Lieutenant Joseph L. Harrington, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Harrington of Meridian, Miss. His parents have been notified of his death.

Harrington was commissioned November 10 after being trained as an aviation cadet. He had been at Lockbourne since January 5.

A board of officers has been appointed to investigate the tragedy.

Lockbourne air base salvage crews worked far into the night Thursday and intended to complete their task Friday of removing wreckage of a speedy P-39 single-motored fighter plane which crashed into a woods behind the farm home of John Heffner, three miles east of Circleville, Thursday at approximately 2:20 p. m.

A Lockbourne-based lieutenant, his name and address not being revealed until next of kin has been notified by the War Department, was killed instantly. His body, mangled beyond recognition, was removed from the cockpit of the plane and taken to Lockbourne army base at about 4 p. m. Thursday after army authorities had taken charge at the scene.

The crash, first to happen in Pickaway county since the Lockbourne base was opened for operation last July, attracted persons from Circleville and surrounding areas, and scores ventured close enough to the wreckage to observe that hardly a single part of the plane, reported capable of traveling faster than 300 miles an hour, remained unbroken. Later in the evening after Lockbourne military police had posted guards no automobiles were permitted off the main highways in the vicinity of the Heffner home.

Other army men who were at the scene of the tragedy said the lieutenant was on his last training flight before being assigned to a field in the South for advanced technical training. That the plane dived headlong into the woods is indicated by the fact that no path was broken through trees of the wooded area by the plane. Only trees broken were those on which the plane fell.

Likely, Lockbourne men pointed out, the pilot's last act was to turn off the ignition switch as the plane fell. This action prevented a fire which would have enveloped the remains of the plane and its pilot. Gasoline was scattered over an area about 30 yards square.

Parts of the plane were found over a similar area.

WALSLEBURG, Colo., Jan. 22—Classes were called off today at the Pictou Teltet rural school near Walsenburg and there was no telling when they would be resumed.

It all was on account of a universal joint on the school bus which wore out. Without the universal joint the bus wouldn't run. And without the bus the kids couldn't get to school.

Guy M. Springer, manager of the Southern Colorado Office of Defense Transportation, took up the matter with the ODT in Washington and hopes for a replacement soon.

NORTHERN DRIVE TALK REVIVED

Scandinavia Regarded As Likely Spot For Blow At Germans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—Lifting of the German siege of Leningrad and Sweden's renewed fears of invasion today revived speculation in diplomatic circles in Washington concerning the possibility of an eventual allied move to open a new front in Norway.

If the Russian offensive around Leningrad can develop sufficient strength, the possibility is seen that the Soviet armies might be able to move up through Finland and effect a juncture with an allied invasion force coming into Northern Norway.

The view has long prevailed in diplomatic circles in Washington that Norway eventually would be a logical place in which to open a new front against Germany.

It is from airfields based in Northern Norway that the German air force has been playing such havoc with the allied convoys to Russia via the northern route. The few warships of the German navy that have ventured out to sea have been based in Norwegian fjords. If the Germans could be driven out of Norway, it is believed the supply route to Russia

JITTERY JAPS PREPARING FOR YANK BOMBINGS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—The Japanese are expecting heavier Allied bombing raids in China, the Chungking radio declared today in a broadcast heard by the Office of War Information. Since the damaging raids on the Lamsi mines in Hopei province last October, the Japanese have strengthened anti-aircraft defenses along the Kiaotsai railroad which runs through the North China mining district.

Air raid precaution drills are held regularly by the Japanese garrisons in the Hopei area, and rigid blackout regulations are strictly enforced, Chungking said.

This evidence of Japanese jitteriness under the pounding of American bombers followed a prediction by Australian Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford that before the end of the year Australian bombers will "surely be dropping bombs on Tokyo."

He disclosed that the RAAF is growing rapidly although the American and Australian air forces already have undisputed superiority in the southwest Pacific. While he warned that the war will be long and bitter, there are already signs that "the enemy has begun to soften and wilt."

Zero Pilots Learn About Liberators

Four Bombers Destroy 12 Japs Out Of 25 In Attack Group

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Jan. 21 — (Via Courier) —Four victorious American B-24 Liberator bombers limped home to their base here tonight after scoring one of the greatest aerial triumphs in the southwest Pacific.

The United States airmen destroyed 12 of an attacking force of 25 Japanese Zero fighters and damaged at least six others in the skies over Wewak, New Guinea.

None of the crew members in the four Liberators was wounded in the hour-long engagement against terrific odds. But one plane returned looking like a sieve with 256 machine-gun and cannon holes peppered into its wings and fuselage. Another weaved in with one of its engines gone. A third had one rudder almost entirely shot away, no brakes and its flaps nearly cut in half by enemy fire.

Fighters Exhausted

The men were exhausted when they returned to their base. Their eyes were bloodshot and their faces stained with grease.

The Jap Zeros had attacked them while they were on a mission to deliver a blow against the Jap base of Wewak on the north coast.

In the hottest dogfight ever to take place over this area the allied bomber crews fired many thousands of rounds of machine-gun bullets. Each bomber crew had its own proud record.

Lieut. Roy Olsen, of Central Falls, Ia., shot down three of the Japs and damaged one. His was the plane that landed with one rudder practically shot away.

Lieut. George Shaffer, of Tulsa, Okla., accounted for two, as did Major Cecil Faulkner of Bellevue, Tex.

Gets Four Japs

Lieut. Frank Dowie, of Des Moines, Ia., led the whole flight by shooting down four and damaging one. Lieut. Charles Cook had one

THIS QUIZ MAY REALLY START WORK FOR OPA

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—OPA officials who neglected to state "answer in English," today were biting their nails in the awful anticipation that they will receive 5,000 questionnaires—filled out in Chinese.

The questionnaires, part of a mailing to all laundries dispatched with a view to establishing price ceilings, were sent to the 5,000 Chinese laundries together with a set of instructions translated into Chinese by the Chinese Benevolent Association.

Lacking interpreters of its own, the OPA fears that it will have to call on the Benevolent Association once more if the forms are returned with Chinese characters. To add to the price censors' woes, the information must be supplied every two months.

MOOSE BLOCKADE MONTANA ROAD; REFUSE TO MOVE

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 22—Residents of Wiserver, a small community 80 miles southwest of Butte, reported today a highway blockade that did not come under the purview of the censorship.

It was not huge snow drifts, nor floods, nor debris left by tornadoes that caused the blockade—just a herd of amiable moose that parked themselves on the highway and refused to budge.

Deputy Game Warden Lester Barton of Butte said he was "trying, although not very successfully, to chase the moose back into the high country" but that he was handicapped because "people persist in feeding them and giving them salt—there's no telling when I'll get rid of them now."

The British Eighth Army has crashed into the suburbs of Tripoli, ending a 1,200-mile advance across the Egyptian and Libyan deserts, the Morocco radio reported today, as the bulk of the defeated Afrika Korps fled toward Tunisia.

The Morocco report said that parts of Tripoli are in flames, with fires also burning in Homs, while other dispatches reported continued attempts by remnants of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's troops to stage a minor "Dunkirk" and embark across the Mediterranean to Sicily in small boats.

(Editor's note: A BBC Dutch-language broadcast recorded by the FCC in New York said that the Tripoli suburbs are in "allied hands." An artillery barrage is being laid down into the capital from a hill position, it was said, while American and British planes pounded the city relentlessly, spreading fire and destruction.)

The Swiss radio broadcast the same report that British troops have entered the city area.

Homs Passed

The official Middle East Command communique, reporting on positions of Thursday, said merely that British vanguards had passed Homs, 65 miles east of Tripoli on the coastal road, and driven beyond Tarhuna, 45 miles distant on the interior desert highway.

But military observers expected news momentarily of the fall of the battered port.

Aircraft of the Middle East Command ranged over the battle field and pounded retreating axis columns as far west as Ben Gardane in Tunisia, 120 miles beyond Tripoli.

The stretch of road was littered with the debris of wrecked enemy vehicles, smashed tanks and wrecked field guns.

Axis airfields on Sicily and in Libya were heavily bombed, and shipping in the Mediterranean was flailed by allied torpedo bombers off the Tunisian coast.

It was a field day for allied airpower from Europe to the far east.

Yanks Drop Japs

In the Southwest Pacific four big American Liberator bombers, attacked by a flight of 25 Japanese Zeros, shot down 12 and damaged six, and another allied bomber squadron attacking the Jap-held naval base at Ambona, destroyed two and damaged several of an attacking force of 20 Zeros.

All American planes returned safely, although some were pretty badly crippled.

Three formations of British Blenheims blasted Japanese positions in West Burma on the stretch between Rathaung and Akyab, the Bay of Bengal port which is the objective of a British land drive.

In Europe the RAF followed a series of daylight raids on the French and Dutch coasts with another night attack on Germany—the first since Sunday's devastating assault on Berlin.

The air ministry announcement said targets in the Ruhr were left in flames but that heavy cloud formations prevented accurate observation of results. Four bombers failed to return. Berlin said six raiders were shot down.

French In Battle

French forces in Central Tunisia were locked in battle with axis tank and infantry forces, and British units were reported rushing to the aid of their allies who have been pushed back in the area of Pont Du Fahs, 65 miles southwest of Tunis.

The enemy was scoring some advances, but at heavy losses in men and equipment.

The massive Russian drives against Kharkov and Rostov rolled ahead relentlessly and without

SPORTSMEN TO ASK STATE TO IMPROVE CANAL

Association Would Make Memorial Park Of Water Stretch

DREDGING TO BE ASKED

Charles Smith Reelected President, Ralph McDill New Vice President

Pickaway county's most popular fishing spot, the canal west of the city, will be taken over by the state of Ohio if favorable action is obtained on a petition to be filed by the Farmers and Sportsmen's Association. The association in annual meeting Thursday evening voted to ask that the body of water that is more than two miles long be made a Memorial park, that the canal be dredged and the banks cleared. E. A. Smith and W. L. Stambaugh were named to a committee to make the necessary approach to the Ohio authorities.

The canal for many years has been a favored fishing spot and its fame as a producer of bass and pan fish is wide spread. Each summer thousands of fishermen from other counties fish there, they far outnumbering the local fishermen. Due to gasoline rationing it is expected that the canal will be more popular than ever this summer.

Charles Smith was re-elected president of the association, and other officers chosen follow: Ralph McDill, vice president; Fred Colville, secretary; Robert Rader, treasurer. The meeting voted for collection of $1 annual dues and to send the Ohio Conservation Bulletin to each member.

Reports were made on two successful bird dog trials held during the year and the go-ahead signal was given for shows next summer. A coon dog trial also may be held during the season.

Pheasant pens that have been located on the Tim Miller farm for some time may be moved closer to Circleville if a suitable site can be obtained. Rats are beginning to work around the pens now. Members of the association also wish the pens closer to the city so that more assistance may be given in handling the birds.

The meeting was held at the Betz restaurant.

CARELESS CHECK CASHERS DRAW FIRE OF JUDGE

Careless cashers of worthless checks drew fire from Judge Meeker Terwilliger, who discussed court procedure before the Rotary club Thursday.

"My patience is sorely tried by the merchant who for the sake of slight profit cashes checks of persons he does not know or of those not able to provide proper identification," the judge said. "Let us follow through on a case of that nature. An unidentified man or woman makes a $2 purchase at a store and offers a $5 check. Later the merchant learns that the check is worthless and he turns the case over to the prosecuting attorney. The sheriff enters the case and the search, sometimes a costly one to the taxpayers is on.

"When the check writer is captured he is jailed and the county feeds him. The accused man seldom if ever has any money so the court is obliged to name an attorney to represent him, and that free is $50. Jurors are called and they all draw fees and mileage. Witnesses get fees. The man is convicted and sent to prison. Further costs to the taxpayer. The convict's family almost invariably is without funds and goes on charity. Again the public pays. Finally the man leaves prison and in a short time cashes another worthless check."

"It would be much cheaper for the county if it would make good all the worthless checks passed in the county, but the law provides otherwise. There is, however, a remedy for the situation and it is that checks never be cashed for anyone until identity of the holder and value of the check are established."

Judge Terwilliger also discussed trial procedure and explained the methods by which jurors are chosen.

We may be coming into a period when it isn't so expensive to get rid of excess weight.

Senators Dislike Tilt Over Flynn's Choice

By Drew Pearson
WASHINGTON D. C., Jan. 22—Here is the real reason why Senator Tom Connally of Texas and other Democrats are so sore at the Senate fight over Boss Ed Flynn's appointment as Ambassador to Australia.

They had hoped to railroad Flynn's confirmation through the Senate with as little hubbub as possible. Senators, especially administration Senators, don't like to wash dirty linen in public.

But Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire upset their plans by bringing the issue squarely into the open. Result is that the Senate will face another wave of public resentment and newspaper attacks, similar to the "pensions" furor, if Flynn is confirmed. Also, every Senator who votes for him will be showered with vitriolic mail from home.

The Republicans aren't worried, because they will vote almost solidly against Flynn. However, every Democrat who votes for him will be on the spot for "playing politics."

That is the inside reason why Senator Connally attacked Bridges so savagely on the floor. And that, also, is why Senate Republicans are laughing up their sleeves.

SECRET COMMITTEE ROW

It didn't leak out, but that hot tit between Connally and Bridges, over Flynn, didn't end on the Senate floor.

There was another flareup when Bridges repeated his charges against Flynn at a closed-door meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. After Chairman Connally called the meeting to order, he gruffly inquired of Bridges:

"You have made some pretty serious charges about Mr. Flynn's alleged associations with a former agent of the Japanese government. Are you trying to attack his loyalty to the United States?"

"No, I'm not accusing Flynn of disloyalty," shot back Bridges, "but I believe that any man who had such associations prior to Pearl Harbor has disqualified himself for diplomatic service in an area where we are fighting the Japs."

"Well, I haven't heard of any objections to Mr. Flynn coming from Australia," drawled Connally. "The people there, among whom he will serve if confirmed, apparently like him all right."

"No, and you haven't heard them shouting with glee about his nomination, either," countered Bridges. "The Australian people probably feel that they aren't in a position to object to anything the President does concerning them, because American soldiers are defending their shores and they are getting lend-lease aid from us. But that doesn't mean that they are happy about having this ward politician foisted on them."

All during the meeting, Democratic Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, a party regular and an old crony of Flynn, kept demanding a lawyer.

"The senator from New Hampshire has made some very serious charges," Guffey yammered over and over again. "Mr. Flynn or his lawyer should be here to answer them before we proceed."

Democratic Majority Leader Barkley finally quieted the agitated Pennsylvanian by assuring him that Flynn would have an opportunity to defend himself at public hearings later.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Berny Baruch has just sent the Carlton Hotel a check for "most of the bill" for his famous dinner for Mrs. Harry Hopkins. The bill had two chief items: (1) a restaurant check of $2,700; (2) a wine check of $2,100. Included in the restaurant check was $180 for flowers. But not included in the wine check was the champagne, which Berny supplied himself.

Justice Frankfurter fought to the bitter end against the appointment of Judge Rutledge to the Supreme Court. His choice was Solicitor General Fahy. When Gen. Eisenhower bombed Tunis and Bizerte, the Nazis forced the Jews to contribute a huge fund to repair the buildings of the Arabs. Since the Jews were against them anyway, the Nazis wanted to win over the Arabs. A Washington suburb, proud of a new garbage incinerator, now jails anyone who delivers garbage to hog farmers.

As a result, farmers have had to sell their pigs despite the pork shortage. Meanwhile the incinerator doesn't burn well, and oil has to be thrown on the garbage. Just before he quit as Governor of Georgia, Gene Talmadge pardoned prisoners at the rate of 36 daily. This pardoning proclivity of some governors is why smart J. Edgar Hoover will indict the Touhy gang for evasion of the draft act but will not bring them to trial. He figures they might be pardoned or they will slip jail again. Then he will have this federal indictment hanging over their heads.

CANADIAN 'GOOD NEIGHBOR'

For months, the U. S. Government has been trying to beguile "good neighbor" Canada into ratifying a treaty by which Canadians charged with swindling the American public through phony stock and bond deals can be extradited from Canada. But the Canadian Government won't move.

Canada has excellent blue sky laws of her own. So also has the United States. But a Canadian can come to this country and sell phony gold bricks, or stock in a company to make rockets to Mars, or put across any shady stock and bond deal. Then when he is caught under U. S. Securities and Exchange laws, he simply skips back to Canada. There he is quite safe. Canada won't relinquish him.

Recently, a treaty was signed between the two countries permitting each to extradite swindlers of this kind. The U. S. Senate has ratified, but the Canadian Parliament hasn't. And the Canadian Government makes no move to push the matter—despite tons of lend-lease equipment now pouring into Canada.

SPORTSMANSHIP OF COUNTIANS GAINS PRAISE

An orchid was extended Friday to Pickaway county sportsmen for their willingness to observe laws set down by the Ohio department of conservation.

Clarence Francis, game protector revealed that during 1942 sixty arrests of game law violators were made in Pickaway county. Of this number only four persons were Pickaway county men. The other 56 were from counties outside of Pickaway.

"This speaks well," Mr. Francis said, "for willingness of local sportsmen to abide by laws set up to protect available game."

Of the 60 arrests, 44 were made by Mr. Francis and 16 by Irvin Patrick, assigned here during the last game season as an aide to Mr. Francis. Patrick is now working in Muskingum county helping to wipe out a grey fox menace.

For months, the U. S. Government has been trying to beguile "good neighbor" Canada into ratifying a treaty by which Canadians charged with swindling the American public through phony stock and bond deals can be extradited from Canada. But the Canadian Government won't move.

Canada has excellent blue sky laws of her own. So also has the United States. But a Canadian can come to this country and sell phony gold bricks, or stock in a company to make rockets to Mars, or put across any shady stock and bond deal. Then when he is caught under U. S. Securities and Exchange laws, he simply skips back to Canada. There he is quite safe. Canada won't relinquish him.

Recently, a treaty was signed between the two countries permitting each to extradite swindlers of this kind. The U. S. Senate has ratified, but the Canadian Parliament hasn't. And the Canadian Government makes no move to push the matter—despite tons of lend-lease equipment now pouring into Canada.

SPORTSMANSHIP OF COUNTIANS GAINS PRAISE

An orchid was extended Friday to Pickaway county sportsmen for their willingness to observe laws set down by the Ohio department of conservation.

Clarence Francis, game protector revealed that during 1942 sixty arrests of game law violators were made in Pickaway county. Of this number only four persons were Pickaway county men. The other 56 were from counties outside of Pickaway.

"This speaks well," Mr. Francis said, "for willingness of local sportsmen to abide by laws set up to protect available game."

Of the 60 arrests, 44 were made by Mr. Francis and 16 by Irvin Patrick, assigned here during the last game season as an aide to Mr. Francis. Patrick is now working in Muskingum county helping to wipe out a grey fox menace.

ARMY REMOVES WRECKAGE OF PURSUIT PLANE

Identity Of Young Aviator Killed Near City Held Secret By Army

(Continued from Page One) never been known, but several witnesses who were nearby when the plane crashed declared that its pilot was putting the fast craft through maneuvers when it went out of control.

Similar accounts of events leading to the crash were told by Loring Evans and his son Emmet, who were first to the scene, and Creighton Anderson and Howard Rodgers, both of whom were nearby. Evans and his son said that when they reached the plane, it was coming from the motor. They intended to try to remove the pilot, fearing that flames might envelop the craft's remains, but when they saw that he was killed instantly and that possibility of flames breaking out had ended they remained away from the plane.

Mr. Evans removed the pilot's identification tag from his wrist, giving it to Richard Hedges of the state highway department who arrived a short time later.

Training Flight
The several persons who were near when the crash happened believed the airman was "hedge-hopping," flying extremely low, then gaining altitude suddenly. Whether the plane went out of control at the top of one of its climbs is not known.

Air base men declared the P-39 handled by the lieutenant is recognized as one of the speediest and trickiest in Uncle Sam's long list of fighter craft.
When the plane went over the farm of Charles Rittinger, half a mile from the scene of the crash, Mrs. Rittinger said the motor did not sound as though it was operating satisfactorily. She told investigators that the plane barely went over a fence on the farm. Several other farmers in the Washington township district said the plane went very low over their properties. However, general belief was that the pilot was not in difficulty, but was training at "hedge-hopping."

First word of the crash came to Circleville when Marvin Dreisbach, Watt street, an employee of the highway department, called his office to report that a plane had crashed east of Circleville. Mr. Hedges organized a crew of workmen, put necessary equipment on a truck and headed for the scene.

Scene Roped Off
Mr. Hedges said that the long lines of rope and scores of iron stakes had been prepared by the state department for just such an emergency, but he added: "We hoped we would never have to use them."

The state crew roped the area to keep curious spectators away, and then stretched a second rope immediately around the plane's wreckage.

Shortly after the first line of rope was stretched Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer arrived to take over until crews form the air base could reach the scene.

In a short time military police and medical men from Lockbourne arrived. The body of the lieutenant was removed from the wreckage, and armed guards were posted around the craft. Later guards were placed at all approaches to the scene, motorists being asked to continue on their way.

Mr. Heffner, owner of the property on which the plane fell, declined to sign papers Thursday evening which would have given him a right to claim damages to his property. He told military men that he didn't want anything for any damage done, and told them to remove whatever fences were necessary to take the plane wreckage from the farm. He asked, however, that guards help to keep curious persons out of his wheat field.

The plane which fell was believed to be one of three which had been over Circleville a large part of the day Thursday. All three were speedy ships and their ac-

SHORTHORN BULL SETS RECORD AT LOCAL AUCTION

Record price for a shorthorn bull was reported Friday by Harry J. Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative. The bull weighing 2,060 pounds and consigned to the weekly auction of the cooperative brought $13.60 a hundred pounds, a total of $280.16.
The bull was consigned to the sale by Ferd Wilson of Ross county and was bought by George Albers of Washington, Pa., representing a Pittsburgh buyer.
The price was the highest ever paid for a bull at the local cooperative's sale.

Zero Pilots Learn About Liberators

Faulkner, with one engine shot out and afire and his bomb bays blazing, and Dowie, with one engine out and another barely turning over, were at the mercy of the Zeros until Olsen and Shaffer, defying the enemy craft which "looked just like a bunch of angry hornets, shifted their flight positions and gave constant protection.

"At times Roy was less than two feet from our wing while we could see George hugging Frank like a lovesick pup," said Faulkner.
"I can't tell you how it felt to have 'em between us and the Japs—without 'em we wouldn't be here right now. They are the boys who saved the day for us—for all of us as a matter of fact."

Gunsners Have Day
All the gunsners aboard had their day, too. They dodged the enemy machine-gun fire with monotonous regularity and many of them claimed they got new parts in their hair from the Jap fire. But almost every one of them came home with a Zero to their credit.

Staff Sgt. Robert Frantz, of St. Claire, Pa., tail gunner for Dowie, had two Zeros shot down; Sgt. John Gillip of Chicago, Dowie's right side gunner, one shot down; Corp. Clyde Daniel, Shreveport, La., and Lubbock, Tex., Dowie's bottom gunner, one Zero shot down.

Sgt. William Nakoneczny, Detroit, Shaffer's tail gunner, one Zero shot down, two damaged; Sgts. Gerald Zimmerman, Milroy, Pa., and William Thomas, Temple, Pa., both flying with Cook, one each; Sgts. Charles D'Agata, Maynard, Mass., and Harold Muscato, Marshalltown, Pa., flying with Olson, one enemy fighter each definitely destroyed; navigator Lieut. Matthew Solitsyski, Providence, R. I., and bombardier Sgt. Jack Coogan, Madison, N. J., divided one definitely destroyed while Sgts. Peter Ambrosovich, Barnesboro, Pa., and William Fitzpatrick, Bradford, Ill., were credited with shooting down at least one apiece.

Shoots For Bing
Shaffer's co-pilot, Lieut. Bill Henery of Oakland, Calif., roaring into battle in "Crosby's Curse," was the happiest man of the lot. He is a close friend of Bing Crosby. He promised to name a plane after the crooner and make sure that it did a good job against the Japs.

"I know Bing would have been happy to see how we knocked them around today," Henery declared. "We really were in give time when we tangled with those guys."

The youthful, serious-minded Faulkner stamped the ground when he came out of his bomber with the exultation of one who had not expected to touch terra firma again.

via Murmansk and Archangel could be made fairly safe.

Other advantages seen in an eventual allied move in Norway include:

The possibility of forcing Finland out of the war;

Diversions of German strength to another active allied front; hitting Hitler at a point where immediate help could be expected from the native people; possibly precipitating a revolt in Nazi-occupied Denmark, and bringing Sweden into the war on the side of the allies.

Belief in allied diplomatic circles that the opening of a new front in Scandinavia would soon find Sweden in the war on the United Nations' side has been strengthened by the Swedish government's recent order to its armed forces.

land, sea and air forces. Despite lack of sleep and constant day and night action, they prevented the Japs from recapturing Henderson airfield.

Military experts marveled at the brilliant record of these Marines, who were said to have been under fire longer than any fighting force in America's history.

Now with fresh and well-equipped army troops in charge of the situation, military analysts feel that the Japanese have definitely lost their chance to recapture the southern Solomons.

Although further Japanese assaults are anticipated, it is believed that American land, sea and air forces are in a position to hold their gains and to extend them gradually.

SPECIAL BOARD PROBES CRASH FATAL TO 35

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—A special board of army air forces officers today was investigating the circumstances surrounding the nation's worst airplane accident which took the lives of 35 Americans, including Author Eric Knight, in Dutch Guinea on January 15.

Army officials were at a loss to explain why the huge four-motored army transport plane carrying the 35 persons—many prominent U. S. officials—crashed into the South American jungles.

Maj. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the army's air transport command, in the announcement of the crash said that "as far as we know the weather was O. K.," indicating that adverse weather conditions did not cause the accident.

George also praised the plane's crew as "one of the best that ever sat in an airplane" and he described Capt. Benjamin H. Daily, Jr., of Mission, Kan., the ship's pilot, as a "top-notch" flyer.

The fact that there were no survivors of the crash made investigation of the cause of the accident even more difficult for army officials.

Details of the accident were very meager. The war department did not reveal whether army parties had reached the scene of the wreckage or, if so, in what condition they found the plane.

In addition to Knight, the victims of the crash included two ace Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and two U. S. State Department officials.

P. E. "Sam" Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, in charge of the New York office, and H. D. Haberfield, special agent of the Buffalo, N. Y., office of the FBI, were the two State Department officials who perished were William Hodson, New York Welfare Commissioner, and O. E. Henryson, who was on his first mission for the department.

PRODUCTION OF HARD COAL NEAR NORMAL STAGE

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 22 —Production of hard coal, vital war essential, approached normal today as the great majority of striking anthracite miners returned to the pits, ending a 23-day wild-cat strike.

The miners returned to work on direct orders from President Roosevelt who warned that unless they did, he would be forced to take over the mines under his wartime powers.

There was still some isolated opposition among the 12,000 miners who walked out in protest over paying an extra 50 cents a month union dues to the United Mine Workers of America.

The U.M.W.A. local representing 800 men employed at the Exeter Mine of the Payne Coal Company openly defied the back-to-work order and instead sent a telegram to the White House asking a definition of what they would gain by returning to work.

Many of the coal miners said they were returning to work only because of the Presidential order and would not halt their opposition to the fifty cent jump in union dues and their agitation for an increase of $2 a day in pay. The pay increase did not figure directly in the strike but it was conceded to be one of the fundamental issues.

HALL CHILD DEAD

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. at the residence in Madison township for John Eugene Hall, two and one-half year son of Mr. and Mrs. Greely Hall. The child died Wednesday. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery by E. F. Schlegel. The child was a twin, his sister, Janet, surviving. There are several other brothers and sisters.

LOANS LIMITED ONLY BY NEEDS OF PRODUCTION

The loan program came on the heels of a controversy within the Wickard administration between the advocates of the large producing units and the friends of the small farmer.

The small farmer's defenders, apparently led by recently-designated Food Production Administrator, H. M. Parisius, have been arguing that food production goals this year must be upped by giving aid to the small producer. This aid, they felt, should take the form of loans, machinery, fertilizer and other facilities. Wickard himself said that "the use of the small farmer depends on how much we can do to help him."

16 REJECTED BY ARMY OUT OF DRAFTEE GROUP

Official report of the January draft contingent sent Friday to the Pickaway county Selective Service office disclosed that 55 men were accepted, two held over for further physical examination and 16 rejected.

Fifty-one of the men returned home for seven day furloughs, being scheduled to return next Wednesday for a journey to Fort Thomas, Ky. There they will be classified and assigned for training.

Names of four men in addition to the 51 announced Thursday as accepted were received by the board. They include Earl Cummings Robinson and Lewis Edward Whaley of Circleville, Robert Francis Smith of Groveport and Walter Scott Pfeiffer of Orient.

Men rejected included:

Circleville: Daniel R. Pfoutz, Jerry Smallwood, Lawrence Payne, Robert Floyd Garner, Jasper T. Poling, Henry Elden Wilkes, George R. Clifton, Max Dennis Sark, Lewis Franklin Conkel and Robert Eugene Tootle. Williamsport: Alfred G. Waits, Russell A. Slagle. Orient: Stanley M. Eakin, Paul Thacker. Lithopolis: Richard T. Parrish. Fostoria, O.: Charles E. Pittenger.

Draft board is still awaiting definite information concerning its February call, men for all branches of service to be called during the next month. A tentative quota has been received, but notices for the call will not be sent out until a definite quota and date have been received.

ARM BANDS AND DECALS ARRIVE FOR POLICEMEN

Arm bands and insignia decals for 40 members of the Pickaway county sheriff's auxiliary police unit arrived Friday in Circleville and distribution has been started to members of the organization.

Members of the unit have put in 50 hours of training, and are continuing regular meetings for additional instruction.

Several members of the unit reported for duty Friday at the scene of the airplane crash east of Circleville.

HOOVER URGES FURLOUGHS FOR FARM WORKERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Former President Herbert Hoover today insisted that production of food, now only second in importance to manufacture of armaments, will take first place in the eyes of the post-war world.

Declaring that his views were not to be taken as a criticism of the administration or of the war effort, the former food administrator of the last world war told a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board that food supplies of the nation today were comparatively less than they were during the last conflict, despite the fact that we have fewer allies to feed.

The former chief executive bluntly placed the blame for the current food shortage on two principal trends—drafting of a farm labor and stringent priorities on farm machinery. The former, he cautioned, cannot be overcome by employment of women alone.

Pointing out that the modern farmer, due to mechanization of farm equipment is a "mechanic as well as a farmer," Hoover declared that the only solution to the problem was a furlough for agricultural workers now in the army, plus the wholesale, temporary employment of Mexican farm labor. He also called upon industry to cease accepting workers coming from farming districts, to "economize on labor in industry and to pass on the economies to the farmer."

SOLDIER RATION CARDS MUST BE SURRENDERED

Parents and wives of men who are now in Uncle Sam's service were given a warning Friday by the Pickaway county rationing office that they must surrender ration cards left at home by the trainees.

Some persons have responded to earlier orders that rationing books must be turned in, but many others have failed to heed instructions.

The ration office announced that a list of men in service is being prepared by Selective Service office and that a check up will be made to determine how many ration cards have been turned in.

setback. A new drive appeared to have been launched from the Voronezh sector with the object of outflanking Kursk, 120 miles north of Kharkov. Kursk is an anchor point and supply base in the Nazi Winter line.

A special communique announced capture of Voroshilovsk in the trans-Caucasus after a stubborn battle. Thus the way is open for the Russian to drive along the railroad to Krasnodar and the Black Sea and cut off enemy forces in the Maikop oil area.

The allied bombing raids in the Southwest Pacific damaged an enemy cruiser and supply ship at Ambona, while two other supply vessels were hit and badly smashed, one being beached to prevent its sinking. The warship was said to have been left in a sinking condition.

TIFFIN FIRM OFFICER ADMITS $300,000 THEFT

TIFFIN, Jan. 22—Prosecutor Robert C. Carpenter today quoted Clarence Weller Crobaugh, 48, executive secretary of the Citizens Building Association Co., as admitting he had embezzled $300,000 from the $3,000,000 company.

The $9,000-a-year executive disappeared Saturday while state examiners were auditing the firm's accounts and was arrested in Toledo. Prosecutor Carpenter said Crobaugh would be held in the Seneca county jail for a grand jury investigation when the examiners complete their work.

Carpenter quoted Crobaugh as explaining that the missing money had "just been spent" over a number of years and that the amount "just grew."

Crobaugh has been directing head of the company since 1934.

He told military men that he didn't want anything for any damage done, and told them to remove whatever fences were necessary to take the plane wreckage from the farm. He asked, however, that guards help to keep curious persons out of his wheat field.

The plane which fell was believed to be one of three which had been over Circleville a large part of the day Thursday. All three were speedy ships and their ac-

SHORTHORN BULL SETS RECORD AT LOCAL AUCTION

Record price for a shorthorn bull was reported Friday by Harry J. Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative. The bull weighing 2,060 pounds and consigned to the weekly auction of the cooperative brought $13.60 a hundred pounds, a total of $280.16. The bull was consigned to the sale by Ferd Wilson of Ross county and was bought by George Alberts of Washington, Pa., representing a Pittsburgh buyer.

The price was the highest ever paid for a bull at the local cooperative's sale.

definite and two damaged for his battle stained Liberator.

Faulkner, with one engine shot out and afire and his bomb bays blazing, and Dowie, with one engine out and another barely turning over, were at the mercy of the Zeros until Olsen and Shaffer, defying the enemy craft which "looked just like a bunch of angry hornets, shifted their flight positions and gave constant protection.

"At times Roy was less than two feet from our wing while we could see George hugging Frank like a lovable pup," said Faulkner. "I can't tell you how it felt to have 'em between us and the Japs—without 'em we wouldn't be here right now. They are the boys who saved the day for us—for all of us as a matter of fact."

Gunsners Have Day

All the gunsners aboard had their day, too. They dodged the enemy machine-gun fire with monotonous regularity and many of them claimed they got new parts in their hair from the Jap fire. But almost every one of them came home with a Zero to his credit.

Staff Sgt. Robert Frantz, of St. Clair, Pa., tail gunner for Dowie, had two Zeros shot down; Sgt. John Gillip of Chicago, Dowie's right side gunner, one shot down; Corp. Clyde Daniel, Shreveport, La., and Lubbock, Tex., Dowie's bottom gunner, one Zero shot down. Sgt. William Nakoneczny, Detroit, Shaffer's tail gunner, one Zero shot down, two damaged; Sgts. Gerald Zimmerman, Milroy, Pa., and William Thomas, Temple, Pa., both flying with Cook, one each; Sgts. Charles D'Agata, Maynard, Mass., and Harold Muscato, Marshalltown, Pa., flying with Olson, one enemy fighter each definitely destroyed; navigator Lieut. Matthew Soltysiak, Providence, R. I., and bombardier Sgt. Jack Coogan, Madison, N. J., divided one definitely destroyed while Sgts. Peter Ambromovich, Barnesboro, Pa., and William Fitzpatrick, Bradford, Ill., were credited with shooting down at least one piece.

Shoots For Bing

Shaffer's co-pilot, Lieut. Bill Henery of Oakland, Calif., roaring into battle in "Crosby's Curse," was the happiest man of the lot. He is a close friend of Bing Crosby. He promised to name a plane after the crooner and make sure that it did a good job against the Japs.

"I know Bing would have been happy to see how we knocked them around today," Henery declared. "We really were in live time when we tangled with those guys."

The youthful, serious-minded Faulkner stamped the ground when he came out of his bomber with the exultation of one who had not expected to touch terra firma again.

via Murmansk and Archangel could be made fairly safe.

Other advantages seen in an eventual allied move in Norway include: The possibility of forcing Finland out of the war; Diversion of German strength to another active allied front; hitting Hitler at a point where immediate help could be expected from the native people; possibly precipitating a revolt in Nazi-occupied Denmark, and bringing Sweden into the war on the side of the allies.

Belief in allied diplomatic circles that the opening of a new front in Scandinavia would soon find Sweden in the war on the United Nations' side has been strengthened by the Swedish government's recent order to its armed forces.

land, sea and air forces. Despite lack of sleep and constant day and night action, they prevented the Japs from recapturing Henderson airfield.

Military experts marvelled at the brilliant record of these Marines, who were said to have been under fire longer than any fighting force in America's history.

Now with fresh and well-equipped army troops in charge of the situation, military analysts feel that the Japanese have definitely lost their chance to recapture the southern Solomons.

Although further Japanese assaults are anticipated, it is believed that American land, sea and air forces are in a position to hold their gains and to extend them gradually.

SPECIAL BOARD PROBES CRASH FATAL TO 35

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—A special board of army air forces officers today was investigating the circumstances surrounding the nation's worst airplane accident which took the lives of 35 Americans, including Author Eric Knight, in Dutch Guinea on January 15.

Army officials were at a loss to explain why the huge four-motored army transport plane carrying the 35 persons—many prominent U. S. officials—crashed into the South American jungles.

Maj. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the army's air transport command, in the announcement of the crash said that "as far as we know the weather was O. K.," indicating that adverse weather conditions did not cause the accident.

George also praised the plane's crew as "one of the best that ever sat in an airplane" and he described Capt. Benjamin H. Dally, Jr., of Mission, Kan., the ship's pilot, as a "top-notch" flyer.

The fact that there were no survivors of the crash made investigation of the cause of the accident even more difficult for army officials.

Details of the accident were very meager. The war department did not reveal whether army parties had reached the scene of the wreckage or, if so, in what condition they found the plane.

In addition to Knight, the victims of the crash included two ace Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and two U. S. State Department officials.

P. E. "Sam" Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, in charge of the New York office, and H. D. Habersfield, special agent of the Buffalo, N. Y., office of the FBI, were the two G-men killed. The two state department officials who perished were William Hodson, New York Welfare Commissioner, and O. E. Henryson, who was on his first mission for the department.

PRODUCTION OF HARD COAL NEAR NORMAL STAGE

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 22—Production of hard coal, vital today as the great majority of striking anthracite miners returned to the pits, ending a 23-day wild-cat strike.

The miners returned to work on direct orders from President Roosevelt who warned that unless they did, he would be forced to take over the mines under his wartime powers.

There was still some isolated opposition among the 12,000 miners who walked out in protest over paying an extra 50 cents a month union dues to the United Mine Workers of America.

The U.M.W.A. local representing 800 men employed at the Exeter Mine of the Payne Coal Company openly defied the back-to-work order and instead sent a telegram to the White House asking a definition of what they would gain by returning to work.

Many of the coal miners said they were returning to work only because of the Presidential order and would not halt their opposition to the fifty cent jump in union dues and their agitation for an increase of $2 a day in pay. The pay increase did not figure directly in the strike but it was conceded to be one of the fundamental issues.

HALL CHILD DEAD

will be reviewed by WPB early next month.

The loan program came on the heels of a controversy within the Wickard administration between the advocates of the large producing units and the friends of the small farmer.

The small farmer's defenders, apparently led by recently resigned Food Production Administrator, H. M. Parisius, have been arguing that food production goals this year must be upped by giving aid to the small producer. This aid, they felt, should take the form of loans, machinery, fertilizer and other facilities. Wickard himself said that "the use of the small farmer depends on how much we can do to help him."

16 REJECTED BY ARMY OUT OF DRAFTEE GROUP

Official report of the January draft contingent sent Friday to the Pickaway county Selective Service office disclosed that 55 men were accepted, two held over for further physical examination and 16 rejected.

Fifty-one of the men returned home for seven day furloughs, being scheduled to return next Wednesday for a journey to Fort Thomas, Ky. There they will be classified and assigned for training.

Names of four men in addition to the 51 announced Thursday as accepted were received by the board. They include Earl Cummings Robinson and Lewis Edward Whaley of Circleville, Robert Francis Smith of Groveport and Walter Scott Pfeiffer of Orient.

Men rejected included: Circleville: Daniel R. Pfoutz, Jerry Smallwood, Lawrence Payne, Robert Floyd Garner, Jasper T. Poling, Henry Elden Wilkes, George R. Clifton, Max Dennis Sark, Lewis Franklin Conkel and Robert Eugene Tootle. Williamsport: Alfred G. Waits, Russell A. Slagle.

Orient: Stanley M. Eakin, Paul Thacker. Lithopolis: Richard T. Parrish. Fostoria, O.: Charles E. Pittinger.

Draft board is still awaiting definite information concerning its February call, men for all branches of service to be called during the next month. A tentative quota has been received, but notices for the call will not be sent until a definite quota and date have been received.

ARM BANDS AND DECALS ARRIVE FOR POLICEMEN

Arm bands and insignia decals for 40 members of the Pickaway county sheriff's auxiliary police unit arrived Friday in Circleville and distribution has been started to members of the organization.

Members of the unit have put in 50 hours of training, and are continuing regular meetings for additional instruction.

Several members of the unit reported for duty Friday at the scene of the airplane crash east of Circleville.

HOOVER URGES FURLOUGHS FOR FARM WORKERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Former President Herbert Hoover today insisted that production of food, now only second in importance to manufacture of armaments, will take first place in the eyes of the post-war world.

Declaring that his views were not to be taken as a criticism of the administration or of the war effort, the former food administrator of the last world war told a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board that food supplies of the nation today were comparatively less than they were during the last conflict, despite the fact that we have fewer allies to feed.

The former chief executive bluntly placed the blame for the current food shortage on two principal trends—drafting of a farm labor and stringent priorities on farm machinery. The former, he cautioned, cannot be overcome by employment of women alone.

Pointing out that the modern farmer, due to mechanization of farm equipment is a "mechanic as well as a farmer," Hoover declared that the only solution to the problem was a furlough for agricultural workers now in the army, plus the wholesale, temporary employment of Mexican farm labor. He also called upon industry to cease accepting workers coming from farming districts, to "economize on labor in industry and to pass on the economies to the farmer."

SOLDIER RATION CARDS MUST BE SURRENDERED

Parents and wives of men who are now in Uncle Sam's service were given a warning Friday by the Pickaway county rationing office that they must surrender ration cards left at home by the troops.

Some persons have responded to earlier orders that rationing books must be turned in, but many others have failed to heed instructions.

The ration office announced that a list of men in service is being prepared by Selective Service office and that a check up will be made to determine how many ration cards have been turned in.

setback. A new drive appeared to have been launched from the Voronezh sector with the object of outflanking Kursk, 120 miles north of Kharkov. Kursk is an anchor point and supply base in the Nazi Winter line.

The allied bombing raids in the Southwest Pacific damaged an enemy cruiser and supply ship at Amboina, while two other supply vessels were hit and badly smashed, one being beached to prevent its sinking. The warship was said to have been left in a sinking condition.

TIFFIN FIRM OFFICER ADMITS $300,000 THEFT

TIFFIN, Jan. 22—Prosecutor Robert C. Carpenter today quoted Clarence Weller Crobaugh, 48, executive secretary of the Citizens Building Association Co., as admitting he had embezzled $300,000 from the $3,000,000 company.

The $9,000-a-year executive disappeared Saturday while state examiners were auditing the firm's accounts and was arrested in Toledo. Prosecutor Carpenter said Crobaugh would be held in the Seneca county jail for a grand jury investigation when the examiners complete their work.

Carpenter quoted Crobaugh as explaining that the missing money had "just been spent" over a number of years and that the amount "just grew."

Crobaugh has been directing head of the company since 1934.

TO CITIZENS

ALL life is not easy now for the young men classified in 4-F. Most of them would have been glad to be 1-A. Many of these young men have some physical handicap which does not interfere with usefulness in ordinary civilian life, but which in active service would soon render them liabilities to army or navy, instead of assets. Here's a husky lad with astigmatic eyes. He can outrun and outwrestle most of his fellows, has good endurance, can eat anything and digest it—if he has his glasses on. He always has two pairs, so, in town, he's protected if he breaks a lens. Without the glasses he cannot distinguish objects at a distance, cannot read a page of directions without headache. If both pairs of glasses break at once, in an hour he's a mess of misery and incompetence. Another boy had an accident in youth. He limps. He's good at a drafting board but cannot walk five miles at a stretch. There are boys to whom certain ordinary foods give serious illness. Here's one who never knew he was color-blind. He cannot tell a ship's red port light from its starboard green. He's a fine mechanic. War news hurts these boys. Every heroic tale digs a barb into their sensitive sides. They carry their handicaps cheerfully, or rudely, or silently, as best they can. They are all meeting difficult tests of courage. To ridicule them is to hit a fellow when he's down.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: One of the grocer's headaches nowadays is the telephone calls or needless wrath in the store of people who cannot remember the days when their next coupons fall due. He says if they would only read the papers and would then write the date and the commodity on the back of the coupon, it would make life so much easier for him and for all his short staff. One of his good older salesmen has to drive the truck nowadays, and his wife had to come in and take one of the telephones because so many people are now telephoning who used to drive and carry their own stuff. So if it hasn't yet been done, write "Sugar February 1" on the back of No. 11 in War Ration Book, 1, and "Coffee February 8" on the back of No. 25. Then watch the papers, as Friend Grocer suggests, for any change. One of these days there might be more—or less—sugar allowed per coupon, or the same amount of coffee earlier. The purpose of rationing is to give fair share to everyone. If shipping improves, more enemy submarines are sunk, the stocks may easily become greater, with corresponding extra value in the coupons. Or they may, alas, become smaller. Don't gripe if you can help it. The tradesmen get so tired listening to it, they can hardly sleep at night. It's not their fault. It's not the fault of the rationing board. It's Hitler's fault, and Tojo's, and that of all the enemies who think the way to succeed is to down the other fellow. When the enemies learn that prosperity comes from peace, not from war, from keeping treaties and friends instead of breaking them, rationing can cease. Meantime, keep the head clear and the tongue pleasant.

TO DRAFT DELINQUENTS

MEN: February 1 has been fixed as a deadline for you fellows to report to your draft boards. If you have changed addresses, if you are not registered, if you have lost your registration and classification cards, I'd suggest that you hot foot it to the courthouse for an interview with Selective Service officials. Uncle Sam is preparing to crack down on persons who are without necessary draft papers, and I hope that no Circleville or Pickaway county men will be called on the carpet for having violated Selective Service regulations. Registrants of the 18-38 year-old group must have in their personal possession at all times their classification cards as well as their certificates of registration. Fines and jail sentences loom for persons who ignore government warnings.

SIR: This is just a note congratulating you for the effort you have put forth to help Uncle Sam in his rationing program. You took over the important rationing job when the task was in its infancy, and you have done a swell piece of work. I am sorry to see you give up the role you have been playing in the undertaking, but I realize the importance of your problem. The time you have spent in volunteer service has taken you away from your business much more than you or the business can afford. OFFICIALS: There are several more holes becoming deeper and deeper in the Court street pavement, impairing traffic and making mishaps highly possible. I realize that this is hardly the time of the year to talk about repairs in brick pavement, but I hope that you will put these sorely-needed repairs on your 'fix-it' list as No. 1. Route 23 is a military highway and Uncle Sam has been sending and will continue to send convoys over the pike. It is to Circleville's credit to keep this route in fit condition.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

A. A. Berle

WASHINGTON. — No "better world" advocate whom I've heard express himself makes it a bit clear how the ideal conditions, naturally so much desired, can be arrived at until the "aggressive countries" not only are licked but are so utterly licked that they never again will dare to peep so much as a whisper.

In fact, the better world folk agree that today's international criminals will have to be policed indefinitely, they never again must be permitted possession of even a firecracker to toss into respectable company. That'll require a big democratic armament, to keep 'em in subjection.

Now, keeping a country in subjection isn't exactly the same thing as inducing it into a better world. It may be absolutely necessary but it isn't entirely satisfactory from the very standpoint of the peoples who are bosing the job. It's expensive to 'em, and it's precarious also.

Assistant State Secretary A. A. Berle went into this subject the other day at a Boston United Nations meeting, but he didn't answer the question.

The United States' population, he truthfully said, is a combination from everywhere; therefore were the ideal aggregation to amalgamate all of everybody. It sounds like logical reasoning, but it doesn't take, somehow.

Our assimilated Germans are among our best citizens. They're fighting with us enthusiastically, as witness the one-time German names in the ranks of our scrappers. The stay-at-home crew, though, line up with Herr Hitler. Taking 'em as a nationality, they seem susceptible, on their native soil, to such influence as Herr Hitler's. There are exceptions—fugitives. Still, in the main, they've got to be kept squelched on into eternity. If a guy proves himself susceptible to a criminal's leadership, can he ever again be trusted? It seems to be inherent in his system.

The Italians, both here and at home, seem pretty solidly okay. True, the home guard are fighting with the Axis, but they don't show any great degree of interest in it. Benito doubtless wishes now that he hadn't involved 'em in it; all indications are that he did it as a matter of misjudgment. Nevertheless, having shown themselves so irresponsible, they require policing.

New Methods Found for Destroying Bacteria

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN IT was first discovered that a great many human diseases—the infectious group—were caused by the entrance and growth of germs in the body, an immediate

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

ate consequence was the belief that simply by immunizing animals to these germs and using the immune serum, each one of the infectious diseases could be controlled.

This idea worked fine with diphtheria and one or two others but for most of them it did not work at all. With tuberculosis, for instance, the first use of tuberculin accelerated the severity of the disease rather than helped it.

Then came the era of chemical control which was based on the belief that a chemical drug could be found which would kill the germ and not injure the tissues of the living host. The boundless enthusiasm with which the sulfonamide drugs have been greeted attests to the success and value of this method of treatment.

But there is still another method of chemical control on the horizon which has opened a second front by starting with the conception that we can find in nature micro-organisms selectively adapted to the decomposition of almost every conceivable type of organic compound.

Experiments With Germs

In other words, experimental work is now being carried on in which germs are introduced into the body which have the specific action of destroying other germs with which the body is infected. It is something like the old saw:

"A flea
Has smaller fleas that on him prey
And these have smaller still to bite 'em
And so proceed ad infinitum."

This work was begun by Dr. du Bos at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and has been carried forward by other workers.

Dr. du Bos specifically has produced a substance from soil bacillus which, introduced into an animal with pneumonia, would attack the germ of pneumonia—the pneumococcus—and eat away its outer capsule, exposing it to the action of the immune substances in the blood and to chemical agents such as the sulfonamide drugs. When seen under the microscope the pneumococcus is always invested with a capsule of some material which seems to be quite resistant to attack by destructive agents, so that the action of this substance, which has been called polysaccharide, does battle with the germ of pneumonia by removing its armor.

Gramicidin

Dr. du Bos extracted another protective agent which he called gramicidin from a soil bacillus which has a true antiseptic action in that it interferes with growth and possibly kills off germs in the body without harming the body cells.

Another step forward was made by Drs. Herrell and Heilmann at the Mayo Clinic with a substance which seems to be antagonistic to germs which cause skin infections. Still another of these soil bacilli, penicillin, which has aroused more enthusiasm than any other, can be given hypodermically without any danger to the body cells; it kills off many germs which are resistant to the action of the sulfonamide drugs.

All of this work is in the experimental stage, but the most conservative workers in the field seem to feel that it opens up a new and exciting chapter in man's long fight against his natural enemy, the germ.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. G. W.: Would carbon dioxide snow be helpful in bringing about the disappearance of a mark which appeared on a child's face at the age of three?

Answer: Very probably, although I could not be certain unless I knew the nature of the mark. It would be best to consult a doctor.

W. M.: I have just read an article called "The Miracle of Blood Substitutes" which states that the plasma taken from any human blood can be used for transfusion on any human regardless of race or color. Can whole blood be transfused from one person into another of different race and color?

Answer: It is true that blood plasma can be transfused without typing. With whole blood the question of race and color is not so important as to see whether the blood agglutinizes or hemolyzes the other blood.

CHAPTER ONE

KAY STEVENS walked across the crowded floor of the huge store, noted with satisfaction that all of her departments were busy. She stepped into the elevator reserved for executives. James, the nice looking colored operator, said, "Good afternoon," and whisked her up to the ninth floor. James thought Miss Stevens was the grandest person in the store. She was reserved, but always kind and friendly.

Miss Hand, David Banning's pretty, cordial secretary, was just leaving his office. "Mr. Banning is waiting for you, Miss Stevens," she told Kay with a smile.

As Kay entered the large, paneled room she congratulated herself. The room did strike just the right note. Masculine, business-like, but obviously the room of a cultured man with excellent taste. Interior decoration wasn't part of her job at all; she had stylists for that. But when Mr. Banning, Sr., died, and his son David had become president, he had come begging to Kay.

"You know the sort of thing I like. Fix it up, please. A large desk, decent lights, room for some books, a clock that keeps correct time. Big ashtrays for my pipes. And no quaint animals or fussy chintzes."

The room had an air of quiet stability that aided the 35-year-old president's relations with both the anxious young buyers and the staid old ones. McClure's was one of the largest department stores in New York, and a store that kept its prestige and its customers by always being several jumps ahead of any other store. It was a hard place to work for, but a fair one.

David motioned to the empty chair beside his desk. Dick Randall, the assistant advertising manager, was comfortably settled on the sofa. Dick was smallish and quick, with gray bright blue eyes and merry laugh. David was tall and broad shouldered, his crinkly brown hair streaked with gray, his habitually sober face attractive because of beautiful large brown eyes and an occasional warm smile. Kay got more than her share of those smiles.

"Dick wants to start planning the advertising for the June sales. Are you ready for him, Kay?" David asked quietly. His voice was always controlled and quiet, even when you knew from his blazing eyes that he was in a rage.

"Just about. I've had conferences with each of the buyers; all the merchandise is lined up and on order, and most of the samples are in."

"Even the stationary?" Dick asked, with an impish grin.

Kay took a cigarette from a hand-tooled leather box. And carefully counted ten. Laura Illing, the stationery buyer, thought she should have been a vice president, not Kay. So she did her best to upset and thwart Kay at every turn.

"Don't tell me that female is still up to her tricks," David said. "If her samples aren't in, I'm going to fire her. She's been spoiling for it for months."

"Oh, they're in, David," Ned Kay. Laura was a mean enemy, but she supported her mother and needed her job.

Dick winked slyly at Kay. A wink Kay was glad David hadn't seen. David didn't hold with sentimentality in business. And he expected everyone to be as honest as he was. Not that Kay wasn't intrinsically perfectly honest. She knew you had to be to get along in any business. She'd learned that lesson long ago.

Her father had died ten years ago. Of a broken heart more than anything else. Most of his fortune had been spent futilely trying to keep Kay's invalid mother alive. He had outlived her only a year. Kay had come to New York feeling very alone and slightly desperate. An old friend of her father's, Mr. Courtney, took her to the Plaza for lunch one day.

"You'll excuse an old man's impertinence, my dear," he had said, over chicken a la king, "but you seem very young to be so much on your own, and I'd like to help you, if I may."

Her bravado had collapsed at his kindness. She had been an idolized only child and was, in many ways, immature for her 20 years.

"I'll have to work. And I don't know quite how to go about it," she had said rather helplessly.

"Is it urgent that you earn money immediately?" he asked earnestly.

"I have enough money to last about two years, if I live comfortably. Longer if I do with one room somewhere."

He ordered her a rich dessert, ice cream with cake and a special gooey sauce. "He does think I'm still a child," she thought. And although she loathed sticky desserts, she was touched, and cleaned the plate.

When she had finished he said, "The retail business is a good one for a girl with brains and looks, and who is willing to work. I'll call up Harold Banning at McClure's. Maybe he can find a spot for you."

Kay was grateful, and the appointment was arranged. In spite of her complete lack of experience, she had impressed old Mr. Banning. He had liked the simple way she wore her smooth black hair, the fact that she used no makeup except a bright lipstick. His keen eye had noted the perfect cut and finish of her deceptively plain dark dress, the beautiful quality of her fur coat.

"Tim Courtney tells me you're looking for a job," he said.

"Yes, I am," she replied, a little nervously. "I thought I'd like to try living in New York for a year or so, and being a working girl would be part of it all."

"So you just want to work for the fun of it?" Mr. Banning had had all he wanted of that kind of girl.

But Kay felt ashamed to admit she needed the money. She'd never needed money before. It seemed almost like a stigma to her.

"Well, we'll keep you in mind, my dear," Mr. Banning said, patting her shoulder and ushering her toward the door in dismissal. Kay felt a sense of sudden panic. At the door she turned and faced the tall, thin man with the stern mouth and the gentle eyes.

"Mr. Banning, I've been stupid. I've given you the wrong impression." She hesitated a moment, and he waited for her to go on.

"I hope working will be fun, but that's not the reason I'm doing it. I have to work." Now it was out. "You should have told me that in the first place. If you have to work, then work you shall."

It had been hard work, too. But fun. Even the selling in the beginning, when she used to get so tired. Young David Banning tripped over her one afternoon, sitting on some rarely used back stairs, crying from sheer weariness. He had been a buyer then, learning the business. He seemed way up in the world to her, and she felt silly and ashamed.

"It's against the fire laws, but what a swell place for a cigarette," he said, ignoring her tears. He offered her one of his, a special brand with his name on them. The first puff fixed her up; by the time the cigarette was finished they had made a dinner date.

TO CITIZENS

ALL life is not easy now for the young men classified in 4-F. Most of them would have been glad to be 1-A. Many of these young men have some physical handicap which does not interfere with usefulness in ordinary civilian life, but which in active service would soon render them liabilities to army or navy, instead of assets. Here's a husky lad with astigmatic eyes. He can outrun and outwrestle most of his fellows, has good endurance, can eat anything and digest it—if he has his glasses on. He always has two pairs, so, in town, he's protected if he breaks a lens. Without the glasses he cannot distinguish objects at a distance, cannot read a page of directions without headache. If both pairs of glasses break at once, in an hour he's a mess of misery and incompetence. Another boy had an accident in youth. He limps. He's good at a drafting board but cannot walk five miles at a stretch. There are boys to whom certain ordinary foods give serious illness. Here's one who never knew he was color-blind. He cannot tell a ship's red port light from its starboard green. He's a fine mechanic. War news hurts these boys. Every heroic tale digs a barb into their sensitive sides. They carry their handicaps cheerfully, or rudely, or silently, as best they can. They are all meeting difficult tests of courage. To ridicule them is to hit a fellow when he's down.

WOMEN: One of the grocer's headaches nowadays is the telephone calls or needless wrath in the store of people who cannot remember the days when their next coupons fall due. He says if they would only read the papers and would then write the date and the commodity on the back of the coupon, it would make life so much easier for him and for all his short staff. One of his good older salesmen has to drive the truck nowadays, and his wife had to come in and take one of the telephones because so many people are now telephoning who used to drive and carry their own stuff. So if it hasn't yet been done, write "Sugar February 1" on the back of No. 11 in War Ration Book, 1, and "Coffee February 8" on the back of No. 25. Then watch the papers, as Friend Grocer suggests, for any change. One of these days there might be more—or less—sugar allowed per coupon, or the same amount of coffee earlier. The purpose of rationing is to give fair share to everyone. If shipping improves, more enemy submarines are sunk, the stocks may easily become greater, with

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

WASHINGTON. — No "better world" advocate whom I've heard express himself makes it a bit clear how the ideal conditions naturally so much desired, can be arrived at until the "aggressive countries" not only are licked to a frazzle but are so utterly licked that they never again will dare to peep so much as a whisper. In fact, the better world folk agree that today's international criminals will have to be policed indefinitely; that they never again must be permitted possession of even a firecracker to toss into respectable company. That'll require a big democratic armament to keep 'em in subjection. Now, keeping a country in subjection isn't exactly the same thing as inducing it into a better world. It may be absolutely necessary, but it isn't entirely satisfactory from the very standpoint of the peoples who are bossing the job. It's expensive to 'em, and it's precarious also.

Assistant State Secretary A. A. Berle went into this subject the other day at a Boston United Nations meeting, but he didn't answer the problem. The United States' population, he truthfully said, is a combination from everywhere; therefore we're the ideal aggregation to amalgamate all of everybody. It sounds like logical reasoning, but it doesn't take, somehow. Our assimilated Germans are among our best citizens. They're fighting with us enthusiastically, as witness the one-time German names in the ranks of our scrapmen. The stay-at-home crew, though, line up with Herr Hitler. Taking 'em as a nationality, they seem susceptible, on their native soil, to such influence as Herr Hitler's. There are exceptions—fugitives. Still, in the main, they've got to be kept squelched on into eternity. If a guy proves himself susceptible to a criminal's leadership, can he ever again be trusted? It seems to be inherent in his system.

The Italians, both here and at home, seem pretty solidly okay. True, the home guard are fighting with the Axis, but they don't show any great degree of interest in it. Benito doubtless wishes now that he hadn't involved 'em in it; all indications are that he did it as a matter of misjudgment. Nevertheless, having shown themselves so irresponsible, they require policing.

Spain's pro-Axis-ism centers around Dictator Francisco Franco. He doesn't signify materially. He wanted to imitate Herr Hitler and Adolf helped him to do so, with the result that he got away with it, skimpily. He hangs on only by his eyelids. Besides, Spanish America is 99-and-a-fraction the other way. This slimmers it down to Germany and Japan. How long it'll take home-staying Germany to civilize itself is a question of guesswork. Assistant State Secretary Berle evidently surmises that it can be done.

A Generation It clearly will be a slow process, though. Berle concedes that it'll require a generation. Meantime this process of policing will have to be in progress. Is that going to make for a peaceful world? Yet, what are we going to do about it? If we fail, says Berle, a damn-right worse situation is ahead. Well, if we win, the question is: Does that end the danger? Or merely stall it off? THIS world! Heck! I speak as an ordinary newspaperman, but kinda religiously. We'll have this same sort of a discussion going on at the National Press club in 1943, just as today.

With Warm Regards

Pale pink and blue are the colors for this rayon jersey nightgown.

HERE is your grandpa's nightshirt brought up to date in pastel rayon jersey, warm as it is soft for all its sheerness. A pin money item, it has the style of George Washington's best, and it is a find for the cold winter.

A narrow turn-back collar, closed with spaghetti ties, soft gathers from a yoke shoulder, buttonless cuffed sleeves and a slim skirt detail it.

Like most things rayon, this gown launders easily and well, but it must not be handled roughly while damp. No pressing is required.

A narrow turn-back collar, closed with spaghetti ties, soft gathers from a yoke shoulder, buttonless cuffed sleeves and a slim skirt detail it.

Like most things rayon, this gown launders easily and well, but it must not be handled roughly while damp. No pressing is required.

PEP'S RING MARK MAY BE RECORD FOR ALL YEARS

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Any one interested in making an honest dollar in good old U.S.A. currency hereby is invited to do same with no strings attached.

All you have to do is submit proof that any fighter of the U. S. A. of modern times, except Willie Pep, of Hartford, Conn., has won as many as 58 professional fights in a row. Just send your evidence in and sit back until the return mail arrives, with a crisp new bill enclosed.

This little game springs from the fact that Harry Markson, the 20th Century Sporting Club purveyor of publicity, stayed up until 4 o'clock today reading through every record book ever published and finally wound-up with a fling at Roget's Thesaurus, the New York telephone directory, the 1943 World Almanac and Plutarch's lives without finding one single fighter who ever compiled a streak comparable to the New York Commission featherweight champion's.

Don't mention Kid Chocolate, Young Stribling, Henry Armstrong. Don't bother even looking them up. Markson already has done that. About the time you have decided on one of them and have begun to count his victories you will stumble into a "nd," or a "d" or a "nc," and he thus will be eliminated then and there.

Those little things, of course, mean no-decision, draw and no-contest, or you may run into a "lf," which is lost on a foul, and that too breaks the streak.

Pep has whipped all 58 of his professional foes and goes after 59 on January 29, when he tackles Allie Stolz, the Jersey lightweight, who figures to have some kind of a chance to end the greatest streak ever compiled—until such time as somebody comes up with a better one.

TIGERS HOPING TO WIN INDIAN JOUST TONIGHT

Coach Roy M. Black of Circleville high's cagers will take his crew of athletes on the C.A.C. court Friday evening in an effort to win the Tigers' first victory of the year. Hillsboro's Indians will provide the opposition.

Several weeks ago the Indians gained a 51-25 edge, and the question to be decided tonight will be whether the Red and Black is 26 points better than in that encounter.

The Tigers have been showing improvement, and may turn in a surprise.

Several county games are also on the schedule Friday evening.

Buckeyes Busy With Heavy Week End Task

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Seven contests played by five Ohio State university teams are on the competitive schedule for this week end. All of the contests will be played on foreign floors.

The basketball team jumps into the thick of the Western Conference war by meeting Purdue at Lafayette Saturday night and again on Monday evening.

Led by Eddie Ehler, all-Indiana

WOOSTER TEAMS LOSING OUT TO SERVICE CREWS

By Harold Lisk
COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Along the Ohio sport trail today we find... Wooster college basketball and swimming squads are finding it extremely difficult to find time to practice.

Naval cadets, assigned to Wooster for Naval Flight Preparatory schooling, use the college at 4 p. m. every day for physical education classes. The cage and tank squads now have to start their drills at 5:30 p. m. and end promptly at 7 p. m. when the Navy takes over again. Only thing the Scot cagers and swimmers want to know is "when and where do we eat?"

Wyndol Gray, Bowling Green State University's leading Ohio basketball scorer, has made more than half his field goal attempts this season.

Although the Cincinnati Reds have only 28 players on their roster, they have more shortstops than any other club. They have four men, Eddie Miller, Woody Williams, Charles Brewster and Damon Phillips, for the important infield position.

The Mt. Union-Wooster cage contest at Alliance tonight is a renewal of one of the state's oldest and keenest basketball rivalries. The first game, played in 1904, was won by Mt. Union, 11 to 4. To date, 55 games have been played with Mt. Union holding the edge, 32 to 23.

"Carrying the colors for alma mater" trains men for carrying the colors for Uncle Sam, says Ohio State university President Howard L. Bevis in recommending the continuation of competitive college sports programs. Living in the army, as well as fighting on the field of battle will be facilitated for millions by the experience of those millions in sports, he asserts.

SUITABLE INSIGNIA FOR DODGER SUITS SOUGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Branch Rickey wants a suitable insignia for the Brooklyn Dodger's uniforms.

He offered a lifetime pass today to the Dodger fan who submits the best design.

"I want something which will depict the meaning behind the name Dodger," Rickey said.

RICKEY TO USE WANER, COONEY; HIRES SISLER

Old St. Louis Brown Star, Head of Semi-Pro Ball, To Have Big Role

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Branch (the Brain) Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, intends to comb the sidewalks and the sandlots, the bayous, prairies and the plains of the country for baseball talent with which to bring the National league pennant back to Flatbush.

Rickey is not so sure he can make good with his plan this year but predicted, if the war ends by 1945 as most optimists predict, it will bear fruit that year and prove the foundation for many more World Series celebrations along the banks of the old Gowanus.

The brain yesterday announced the acquisition of two cast-off outfielders of the Boston Braves, Paul Waner and Johnny Cooney, but much more significant, the addition of the veteran baseball hero, George Sisler, to his scouting staff.

The Dodgers, in addition to George, now have Ted McGrew, Tom Greenwade, Tom Downey, Bob Finch, Wild Matthews, Dick Fisher, Justin Fitzgerald and Fresno Thompson available for "camp work."

This simply means the canvassing of every type of semi-pro, sandlot, industrial and leaky-roof league for boys in their teens with reasonable baseball prospects. McGrew will be the chief minor league scout and Sisler will probably prove the assistant brain in this division of the Dodger board of strategy.

Adds Scouts
The brain is in direct disagreement with most Major League clubs, whom he claims are cutting down on their scouting because of the uncertainty of the minor league set-up this year, and thinks this is the time when scouting should be stressed, rather than ignored.

It is no idle coincidence that brother Sisler has joined the fold. PEP'S RING MARK

MAY BE RECORD FOR ALL YEARS

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Any one interested in making an honest dollar in good old U.S.A. currency hereby is invited to do some with no strings attached.

All you have to do is submit proof that any fighter of the U. S. A. of modern times, except Willie Pep, of Hartford, Conn., has won as many as 58 professional fights in a row. Just send your evidence in and sit back until the return mail arrives, with a crisp new bill enclosed.

This little game springs from the fact that Harry Markson, the 20th Century Sporting Club purveyor of publicity, stayed up until 4 o'clock today reading through every record book ever published and finally wound-up with a fling at Roget's Thesaurus, the New York telephone directory, the 1943 World Almanac and Plutarch's lives without finding one single fighter who ever compiled a streak comparable to the New York Commission featherweight champion's.

Don't mention Kid Chocolate, Young Stribling, Henry Armstrong. Don't bother even looking them up. Markson already has done that. About the time you have decided on one of them and have begun to count his victories you will stumble into a "nd," or a "d" or a "nc," and he thus will be eliminated then and there.

Those little things, of course, mean no-decision, draw and no-contest, or you may run into a "if," which is lost on a foul, and that too breaks the streak.

Pep has whipped all 58 of his professional foes and goes after 59 on January 29, when he tackles Allie Stolz, the Jersey lightweight, who figures to have some kind of a chance to end the greatest streak ever compiled—until such time as somebody comes up with a better one.

TIGERS HOPING

TO WIN INDIAN JOUST TONIGHT

Coach Roy M. Black of Circleville high's cagers will take his crew of athletes on the C.A.C. court Friday evening in an effort to win the Tigers' first victory of the year. Hillsboro's Indians will provide the opposition.

Several weeks ago the Indians gained a 51-25 edge, and the question to be decided tonight will be whether the Red and Black is 26 points better than in that encounter.

The Tigers have been showing improvement, and may turn in a surprise.

Several county games are also on the schedule Friday evening.

SAVOLD AND BOLDEN

TOPS IN CHICAGO GO

CHICAGO, Jan. 22—Lee Savold of Paterson, N. J. and Nate Bolden, Chicago Negro, had top billing today in a ten round bout that will round out the all-heavyweight card at the Chicago stadium tonight which is expected to draw an attendance of 9,000 and a gate of $20,000.

In other ten-rounders on the card of five heavyweight battles Lem Franklin, hard-hitting Cleveland Negro, meets Altus Allen, Chicago Negro, and Pat Comiskey of New Jersey squares off against Clayton Worlds, rangy Chicago Negro.

Buckeyes Busy With

Heavy Week End Task

COLUMBUS, Jan. 22—Seven contests played by five Ohio State university teams are on the competitive schedule for this week end. All of the contests will be played on foreign floors.

The basketball team jumps into the thick of the Western Conference war by meeting Purdue at Lafayette Saturday night and again on Monday evening.

Led by Eddie Ehler, all-Indiana player, the Purdue team plays a "race horse" type of game, similar to other years when Coach Ward Lambert was winning the conference title with great regularity. Ehler, according to Ohio State scouts, is probably the fastest boy in Big Ten circles this year and on top of this he has an uncanny eye for the basket. All of which goes without saying the Buckeyes are in for an interesting week end.

Coach Mike Peppe inaugurates the 1943 swimming season Saturday night at Ann Arbor when his team meets Michigan in the first of two dual matches this season. Although untried to date, Peppe believes he has one of the best balanced teams this year that he has ever had in his years at Ohio State. The squad is led by the Little Hawaiian, Keo Nakama, free flyer, who already holds several records, and Frank Dempsey, Big Ten diving champion. On Monday night the swimmers move on to East Lansing for a meet with the Michigan State natators.

The fencing team, after postponing its opening for a week, will meet the University of Cincinnati swordsmen Saturday afternoon at the Queen City.

Winner of one match and loser of another, the Buckeye wrestlers also invade the University of Michigan Saturday afternoon for their first Big Ten meet. On Friday evening the Buckeye frosh basketball team will play at the Lockbourne Air Base, completing the week's activities.

Although the Cincinnati Reds have only 28 players on their roster, they have more shortstops than any other club. They have four men, Eddie Miller, Woody Williams, Charles Brewster and Damon Phillips, for the important infield position.

The Mt. Union-Wooster cage contest at Alliance tonight is a renewal of one of the state's oldest and keenest basketball rivalries. The first game, played in 1904, was won by Mt. Union, 11 to 4. To date, 55 games have been played with Mt. Union holding the edge, 32 to 23.

"Carrying the colors for alma mater" trains men for carrying the colors for Uncle Sam, says Ohio State university President Howard L. Bevis in recommending the continuation of competitive college sports programs. Living in the army, as well as fighting on the field of battle will be facilitated for millions by the experience of those millions in sports, he asserts.

Count Fleet, will be shipped here along with 16 other horses belonging to the stable of Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago and will be raced at least twice during the winter meeting of Oaklawn Park which opens February 22, according to his trainer, Don Cameron.

Eugene Bury, racing secretary of Oaklawn, announced the track would accommodate as many of the "refugee" turfmen from Florida as space would allow. He said he expected to have 800 horses on the ground when the meeting opens.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 22—Count Fleet, champion 2-year-old of 1942, and his jockey, Johnny Longden, who rode him in all his races, were scheduled today to arrive at Hot Springs from Lexington, Ky., some time next week to train for the Kentucky Derby.

RICKEY TO USE WANER, COONEY; HIRES SISLER

Old St. Louis Brown Star, Head of Semi-Pro Ball, To Have Big Role

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Jan. 22 — Branch (the Brain) Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, intends to comb the sidewalks and the sandlots, the bayous, prairies and the plains of the country for baseball talent with which to bring the National league pennant back to Flatbush.

Rickey is not so sure he can make good with his plan this year but predicted, if the war ends by 1945 as most optimists predict, it will bear fruit that year and prove the foundation for many more World Series celebrations along the banks of the old Gowanus.

The brain yesterday announced the acquisition of two cast-off outfielders of the Boston Braves, Paul Waner and Johnny Cooney, but much more significant, the addition of the veteran baseball hero, George Sisler, to his scouting staff.

The Dodgers, in addition to George, now have Ted McGrew, Tom Greenwade, Tom Downey, Bob Finch, Wild Matthews, Dick Fisher, Justin Fitzgerald and Freaco Thompson available for "camp work."

This simply means the canvassing of every type of semi-pro, sandlot, industrial and leaky-roof league for boys in their teens with reasonable baseball prospects. McGrew will be the chief minor league scout and Sisler will probably prove the assistant brain in this division of the Dodger board of strategy.

Adds Scouts

The brain is in direct disagreement with most Major League clubs, whom he claims are cutting down on their scouting because of the uncertainty of the minor league set-up this year, and thinks this is the time when scouting should be stressed, rather than ignored.

It is no idle coincidence that brother Sisler has joined the fold. George happens to be the high lama of the National Semi-Professional Baseball Congress, not a bad connection for Rickey & Co. to have in this day and age when the game will be played by kids, hardly dry behind the ears, and old gaffers a fast burn away from the old men's home.

Sisler knows the semi-pro inside and out and should be able to whisper something more than sweet nothings into the good brothers' ear about various prospects. Not only that but he has known the brain for many years, having been coached by Rickey at the University of Michigan and broken into the majors under him with the St. Louis Browns 30 years ago.

"I believe in the mass production of ballplayers," said Branch, "one year I looked at more than 3,500 of them and this is certainly the time to look. We hope to look at every 16 and 17 year old ballplayer in the country."

The next step? "Well, we'd sign them up. I can't say, definitely, now whether we would try and bring them all to one club for development or if we would even have a club to bring them to, but that is what we hope to do. If the war goes two more years, and most folks seem to think it will be over by the end of 1944, I think my plan will work out fine. If the war continues I will have wasted a year's scouting."

Nannie Fowler Escapes Police In Three Hour Local Hunt

WOMAN WANTED FOR MURDER IS SEEN IN CITY

Fugitive Uses Pistol To Obtain Food At Home Of Acquaintance

IDENTIFICATION POSITIVE

Accused Slayer Threatens To Kill Holdup Victim For Spreading Alarm

Three-hour search Thursday evening in the Circleville district for Norma (Nannie) Bates Fowler, wanted in Columbus for murder, failed to bring any results, although Columbus law officers who came here to intensify the search believe the woman is hiding in this vicinity.

Mrs. Fowler, 26, is wanted on a murder warrant charging her with shooting her husband, Guy B. Fowler, 47, to death in their Linden, Columbus suburb, home last Friday night. Franklin county authorities say she killed him with a .12 gauge shotgun borrowed from her father, John Bates, of Circleville, then stuffed his body in a cedar chest he had given her for Christmas.

Two developments in the Fowler case broke in rapid succession Thursday afternoon.

Uses Pistol

First, Mrs. Minnie Buckingham, a mute who lives in the factory district near the home of Mrs. Fowler's father, sent word to the sheriff's office that Mrs. Fowler had sneaked into her home and had, at the point of a pistol, taken a loaf of bread and some coffee. Mrs. Buckingham's message said that Mrs. Fowler was wearing a dark short coat, green riding breeches, leather boots and had her hair tucked under a man's cap. She was positive of her identification.

Mrs. Fowler, who was reared in the same community with Mrs. Buckingham, is able to converse in sign language. Sheriff Charles Radcliff was told, and by this method warned Mrs. Buckingham against notifying any authorities. The deaf and dumb woman, because of this warning, did not send a message to the sheriff's office until some time after the reported holdup.

The holdup happened shortly after 2 p. m. Thursday, the sheriff being informed a few minutes after 2:30.

Sheriff On Scene

Sheriff Radcliff and Deputy Vern Pontious hurried to the southern district and searched through houses and along the Norfolk and Western tracks as far as the Dorney coal station where it was reported Mrs. Fowler might have been hiding. Railroad section crews working in the area were asked if they had seen any strange person on the tracks. They had not.

Two hours later, at 5 p. m., Sheriff Jacob Sandusky of Franklin county and five of his deputies came to Circleville to continue the hunt along the railroad after they had been given additional information by Sheriff Gorman Clark of Madison county.

Mrs. Fowler's sister, Carrie Bates, 22, was arrested in Circleville Thursday for London authorities on a charge of theft of a pair of bifocal glasses from a Madison county farm residence. Picked up by Sheriff Radcliff, she was taken to London immediately. Miss Bates was wearing the glasses when she was seen on the street by the sheriff. With her was Eddie Tootle of near Circleville who was also arrested for stealing a watch from the same house. He, too, was returned to London.

Sister Directs Hunt

After being taken to London, Miss Bates told Sheriff Clark that she believed her sister might be hiding in the Dorney coal tipples. She said that she had heard her say that it "would be a swell place to hide sometime."

Sheriff Clark called Sheriff Sandusky to inform him of the development, the call resulting in Sandusky's hurried trip to Circleville.

Sheriff Clark brought two of his deputies and Miss Bates to Circleville, the two groups arriving at nearly the same time.

The posse, comprised of Sheriff Radcliff and his deputies, Pontious and Bryan Custer; Sheriff Sandusky and his men and Sheriff Clark and his aides, searched the area from 5 o'clock until after dark without any results.

Carrie Bates, who is also able to talk with Mrs. Buckingham through the sign language, questioned her concerning her story of the holdup and it proved to be the same in every respect as the message sent to the sheriff.

Descriptions of Mrs. Fowler were broadcast Thursday afternoon on the state highway department radio, the woman being described as 26, brown hair and brown eyes, five feet four inches tall and weighing 150 pounds. Her juvenile court record was also reported by the patrol.

Has Security Plan

A broadened social security plan providing greater benefits, developed by the United States department of labor, soon will be presented to President Roosevelt by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Miss Perkins, shown above, has revealed.

LUTHERAN MEN GUESS ABOUT AFFAIRS OF 1943

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood engaged in a guessing contest Thursday evening concerning what may happen to national, international and economic affairs during 1943. Members of the organization wrote their guesses on slips of paper which were sealed and placed in envelopes. They will be opened at the last meeting in December.

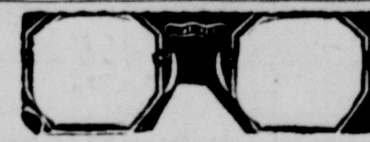

The program with the Rev. G. L. Troutman in charge consisted of motion pictures of the coffee industry in Brazil shown by Lewis Lockard.

Other parts of the program included a talk by Charles Walters on post-war agriculture, and another address by the Rev. Mr. Troutman on the effect of the war on boys in service. He declared that many of the boys are taking more interest in the church because of the war, letters he is receiving being evidence of this fact. A buffet lunch consisting of weiner and cheese sandwiches and milk was served by a committee headed by Roy Stout.

Gladden Troutman, president of the brotherhood, presided.

Nannie Fowler Escapes Police In Three Hour Local Hunt

WOMAN WANTED FOR MURDER IS SEEN IN CITY

Fugitive Uses Pistol To Obtain Food At Home Of Acquaintance

IDENTIFICATION POSITIVE

Accused Slayer Threatens To Kill Holdup Victim For Spreading Alarm

Three-hour search Thursday evening in the Circleville district for Norma (Nannie) Bates Fowler, wanted in Columbus for murder, failed to bring any results, although Columbus law officers who came here to intensify the search believe the woman is hiding in this vicinity.

Mrs. Fowler, 26, is wanted on a murder warrant charging her with shooting her husband, Guy B. Fowler, 47, to death in their Linden, Columbus suburb, home last Friday night. Franklin county authorities say she killed him with a .12 gauge shotgun borrowed from her father, John Bates, of Circleville, then stuffed his body in a cedar chest he had given her for Christmas.

Two developments in the Fowler case broke in rapid succession Thursday afternoon.

Uses Pistol

First, Mrs. Minnie Buckingham, a mute who lives in the factory district near the home of Mrs. Fowler's father, sent word to the sheriff's office that Mrs. Fowler had sneaked into her home and had, at the point of a pistol, taken a loaf of bread and some coffee. Mrs. Buckingham's message said that Mrs. Fowler was wearing a dark short coat, green riding breeches, leather boots and had her hair tucked under a man's cap. She was positive of her identification.

Mrs. Fowler, who was reared in the same community with Mrs. Buckingham, is able to converse in sign language. Sheriff Charles Radcliff was told, and by this method warned Mrs. Buckingham against notifying any authorities. The deaf and dumb woman, because of this warning, did not send a message to the sheriff's office until some time after the reported holdup.

The holdup happened shortly after 2 p. m. Thursday, the sheriff being informed a few minutes after 2:30.

Sheriff On Scene

Sheriff Radcliff and Deputy Vern Pontious hurried to the south end district and searched through houses and along the Norfolk and Western tracks as far as the Dorney coal station where it was reported Mrs. Fowler might have been hiding. Railroad section crews working in the area were asked if they had seen any strange person on the tracks. They had not.

Two hours later, at 5 p. m., Sheriff Jacob Sandusky of Franklin county and five of his deputies came to Circleville to continue the hunt along the railroad after they had been given additional information by Sheriff Gorman Clark of Madison county.

Mrs. Fowler's sister, Carrie Bates, 22, was arrested in Circleville Thursday for London authorities on a charge of theft of a pair of bifocal glasses from a Madison county farm residence. Picked up by Sheriff Radcliff, she was taken to London immediately. Miss Bates was wearing the glasses when she was seen on the street by the sheriff. With her was Eddie Tootle of near Circleville who was also arrested for stealing a watch from the same house. He, too, was returned to London.

Sister Directs Hunt

After being taken to London, Miss Bates told Sheriff Clark that she believed her sister might be hiding in the Dorney coal tippie. She said that she had heard her say that it "would be a swell place to hide sometime."

Sheriff Clark called Sheriff Sandusky to inform him of the development, the call resulting in Sandusky's hurried trip to Circleville.

Sheriff Clark brought two of his deputies and Miss Bates to Circleville, the two groups arriving at nearly the same time.

The posse, comprised of Sheriff Radcliff and his deputies, Pontious and Bryan Custer; Sheriff Sandusky and his men and Sheriff Clark and his aides, searched the area from 5 o'clock until after dark without any results.

Carrie Bates, who is also able to talk with Mrs. Buckingham through the sign language, questioned her concerning her story of the holdup and it proved to be the same in every respect as the message sent to the sheriff.

Descriptions of Mrs. Fowler were broadcast Thursday afternoon on the state highway department radio, the woman being described as 26, brown hair and brown eyes, five feet four inches tall and weighing 150 pounds. Her juvenile court record was also reported by the patrol.

LUTHERAN MEN GUESS ABOUT AFFAIRS OF 1943

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood engaged in a guessing contest Thursday evening concerning what may happen to national, international and economic affairs during 1943. Members of the organization wrote their guesses on slips of paper which were sealed and placed in envelopes. They will be opened at the last meeting in December.

The program with the Rev. G. L. Troutman in charge consisted of motion pictures of the coffee industry in Brazil shown by Lewis Lockard.

Other parts of the program included a talk by Charles Walters on post-war agriculture, and another address by the Rev. Mr. Troutman on the effect of the war on boys in service. He declared that many of the boys are taking more interest in the church because of the war, letters he is receiving being evidence of this fact.

A buffet lunch consisting of weiner and cheese sandwiches and milk was served by a committee headed by Roy Stout.

Gladden Troutman, president of the brotherhood, presided.

DON'T BLAME US

Your merchant didn't start the war so don't blame him when you can't always get the goods you want. Neither can he.

He is sorry when he can't deliver or give you all the service he once gave you. Our government won't allow this anymore—to save gas, tires, material, and labor for the war effort.

Your druggist is the same "good guy" he always was. He's working hard to see that you get a fair share of all available goods. He's still filling prescriptions as carefully as ever. He's keeping all his prices down.

Your druggist wants to help you all he can. But he also wants to help win the war. He knows you do, too.
